By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

More than 700 garden enthusiasts acclaimed the success of The Constitution's annual fall garden school as they thronged the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club for the opening session yesterday morning.

Rounds of applause greeted Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, director and widely known garden authority, as she opened the school at 10 o'clock. The capacity audience was made up of representatives from practically all of the local garden clubs and many amateur gardeners from Atlanta and near-by cities. Nor was the stamp of approval entirely feminine. The enthusiastic throng contained a generous sprinkling of men, thereby proving that the school also appeals to the masculine mind as a welcome answer to its gardening problems.

Two More Days.
The school will continue today and tomorrow at the same hour. Mrs. Willard McBurney, past president of the Rose Garden Club, will introduce Mrs. Crown this morning when she speaks on the timely subject, "Work To Be Done in the Garden Now."

At yesterday's opening session, the school was instructed on the all-important topic of "Propagation." Mrs. Crown brought plants from her own garden, in Decatur, to illustrate the four different kinds of propagation, namely: by seeds, by stems, by root cuttings, and by leaf cuttings. She deftly described each method, beginning with propagation by seed. Using a schoolroom blackboard, she listed each step in the process, explaining what seed to use for this climate, when to plant them, and how a plant for best results.

In the manual part of the school, she divided her plants into the subject of propagation by stems, describing the processes as those of cuttings, of rhizomes, runners, offsets, layers, bulbs, corms and tubers. Turning to reproduction by roots, she emphasized that the more you divide your plants the better they thrive, and that right now is the time to make such divisions. Root propagation may be achieved by means of root cuttings, suckers, or tuberous roots.

Leaf propagation is perhaps the least used, but is just as simple and successful as other types of propagation, according to Mrs. Crown. And she chose as a common example the chrysanthemum or the hollyhock, either of which may be reproduced by cutting a leaf with a small portion of stem, and sticking it in the soil to root. One of Mrs. Crown's cleverest illustrations was accompanied by an amusing story of a potato vine which grew in her dining room all

Fulton's New Senator

G. EVERETT MILLICAN.

MILICAN WINNER FOR STATE SENATE BY VOTE OF 2 TO 1

Less Than 5,000 Ballots
Cast in County Election
Out of Registration List of More Than 40,000.

By a vote of more than two to one, Fulton county voters yesterday elected G. Everett Millican to represent the new 52d district of Fulton county in the state senate.

Less than 5,000 of the more than 40,000 persons registered went to the polls to cast a vote. Little more than an hour was taken to count the votes after the polls closed at 6 o'clock in the city and 3 o'clock in rural districts.

Vote Is Given.

The voting was: Millican, 3,075; Paul H. Butler, 1,470; D. H. Brackett, 177; J. S. Shetlworth, 191, and G. W. Threlkel, 76.

Immediately after he was notified of his victory, Millican issued the following statement:

"I wish to thank all the voters of Fulton county for the splendid majority given me in the election Wednesday and assure them that I will continue to serve all the people of the county in the state senate to the very best of my ability."

In the last general assembly, Millican was instrumental in "legislating himself out of office." He sponsored a bill to give Fulton county its own senatorial representative by creation of a new district.

Under the old setup, Fulton, Clayton and Henry counties roared.

GEORGIA FARMERS PLEDGE SUPPORT TO CROP CONTROL

Tariff Wall's Effect on

Georgia farmers yesterday went on record as strongly favoring compulsory crop control with administration as far as possible in the hands of local committees.

Appearing before a special subcommittee of the senate committee on agriculture, a large group of cotton producers, most of the "dirt farmer" variety, also revealed that "the more teeth congress puts in the law the greater the benefits will be to the farmers."

The subcommittee, composed of Senator John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, author of the now defunct Bankhead control act, and Senator J. Allen Ellender, of Louisiana, is conducting a series of hearings throughout the cotton belt for the purpose of learning what the farmers themselves want done in connection with the effort to control production and stabilize prices.

The answer in Georgia was the same as that given in South Carolina and before leaving for Montgomery, where there is to be a hearing today. Senator Bankhead revealed that he already has received information that farmers of Alabama in a series of county meetings have demanded a strict control program.

Georgia Senators Present.
Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr., while not members of the committee, sat with the visiting senators at the hearing at the state capitol and took an active interest in the proceedings. Others in attendance included congressmen Paul Brown, of Elberton; B. Frank Wheeler, of Gainesville, and Stephen Pace, of Americus.

Some of the farmers went so far as to tell Senator Bankhead that they wanted his law put back on the books. The Bankhead act was LONDON, Oct. 20.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini, running up against a dangerous Franco-British threat, suddenly dropped his defiant attitude tonight and agreed to collaborate in a plan to withdraw his Fascist Blackshirts and other foreign "volunteers" from Spain.

Il Duce's conciliatory gesture, which came as a surprise even to Italian diplomats in Rome, held out hopes of solving a three-way deadlock within the nonintervention committee and averting a crisis crammed with possibilities of war.

The nonintervention delegates, quick to seize upon Italy's consent to sending a neutral "volunteer" commission to Spain at once, agreed that it constituted "a substantial degree of progress" and asked that immediate steps be taken to put the proposals into operation.

Objections Withdrawn.
Italy and Germany announced that they had withdrawn their objections to Franco-British proposals whereby belligerent rights will be withheld from both Spanish factions until "token" withdrawals of volunteers have been carried out. Until today the Rome-Berlin axis demanded simultaneous recognition of belligerency.

Until the Italian delegate on the nonintervention subcommittee, Ambassador Dino Grandi, announced Il Duce's surprise offer the group appeared doomed to a hopeless deadlock.

The Italian proposal, narrowing the divergence of views, provided:

Denhardt Was Shot in Back, Prosecution Says,
Denying Self-Defense.

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—

(P)—The commonwealth today attacked the defense contention that Roy Garr shot Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt to death in self defense.

Through witnesses Attorney General Meredith sought to show that all three bullets that struck down the portly ex-lieutenant governor on the eve of his second trial for the alleged murder of the Garrs' sister, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, were fired into Denhardt's back.

Killed September 20.
Denhardt was killed here September 20 on the eve of his second trial, the first having ended in a deadlocked jury.

Roy Garr testified he had conferred with Commonwealth's Attorney Kinolowling, regarding evidence he expected to be introduced at Denhardt's second trial that Roy said would cast reflections on "my sister's character." Meredith hammered at Roy on cross-examination:

"Isn't it true that you shot the general because you were disappointed the jury at New Castle didn't convict him and because you didn't want the new evidence brought out?"

Claims Self-Defense.
Each time Roy answered, "No," and added "I shot to protect my life."

JAPANESE BALKED BY 'RED NAPOLEON'

Chinese Reported Driving tung After Reverses.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

SHANGHAI, Thursday, Oct. 21. Chinese military sources reported today that China's northern armies, spearheaded by China's famed "Red Napoleon," Chu Teh, had delivered a stunning setback to the Japanese along a broken 500-mile front from Shansi to the sea.

The reports said Chu Teh's veteran eighth routers, hard-bitten remnants of China's old "revolutionary" army, had cut through the Shansi border into Hopei province, and were attacking the Japanese from the rear.

One report, which was not confirmed even by Chinese sources, said Paoing-fu, seat of the Chinese military academy in Hopei, had been recaptured.

Advance Broken Up.
The Chinese said Chu Teh, who has been breaking up the Japanese advance into Shansi, isolating divisions and destroying small detachments, had carried his "flying tactics" across the Hopei-Shansi border and was attempting to split

'Monty' Picks Men Who Toil For His Jury

No 'White Collar' Worker
Among 12 Who Will Decide His Fate.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(UP)—Bronzed men who earn a living by the skill and strength of their hands—farmers, laborers and carpenters—will decide whether mysterious John Montague goes back to the Hollywood where he found fame or goes to prison for a crime he committed seven years ago when he went under the name of Laverne Moore.

The twelfth juror was seated in Essex county court at dusk today. Tomorrow District Attorney McDonald will present testimony designed to convince the jurors that Montague was the man who broke into Kin Hana's roadside in August, 1930, smashed an elderly man on the head with a blackjack and escaped with $800.

Fleets Own Jury.
If this trial does not end as Montague wants it to end, he can lay much of the blame on his own broad shoulders. For during the two days needed to select the jury, he was in almost constant consultation with his attorney, James Noonan. He vetoed the selection of many tall men and approved those who now sit in the jury box ten feet away from him.

There is no "white collar" man on the jury, whose members are: John Gardner, carpenter; Milton Talbot, filling station operator; Edward Blanchard, plumber; Alvin Woods, laborer; Wilkie Lawrence, farmer; Ralph McDonald, laborer; Denton Gill, truck driver;

RELATIVES CLAIM AIR CRASH VICTIMS

Trapper Heard Giant

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 20.—

(P)—A mountaineer—only eyewitness to America's worst airplane disaster—told a vivid story today of a transport pilot flying blindly through a mountain blizzard, then a terrific crash which killed 19 persons.

Height Profitt, trapper from northeastern Utah's trackless wilderness, said he saw the United Air Lines' 21-passenger "Mainliner" barely miss towering peaks in his back yard, Sunday night, watched the craft's lights vanish in the storm, then heard it plough into a granite ridge.

Bodies Identified.
Even as Profitt related his story bereaved relatives visited a small mortuary in southwestern Wyoming's Evanston, identified and claimed the broken bodies, shortly after hardened mountaineers made the hazardous trek to the scene of the wreck to recover the bodies. Relatives continued to arrive throughout the night. A United Airlines official said all bodies will be claimed before tomorrow.

A county-sponsored investigation of the accident, conducted by Joseph Hopkins, coroner of Summit county, Utah, where the crash occurred, brought an official verdict that "death was by accident."

Further and more intensive investigations will come later. Profitt's crude pin-board cabin sits near Humpy creek in the

END OF DOCK STRIKE UNDER TRUCE TODAY, UNION ANNOUNCES

8,000 Longshoremen Will Return to Work Pending Negotiation.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 21.—(Thurs.)—(AP)—V. E. Townsend, southern representative of the International Longshoremen's Association, said a truce would become effective "some time today" which will return 8,000 striking longshoremen to their jobs in southeastern seaports.

The truce will temporarily end a six-day-old waterfront strike pending final negotiations for its settlement. It affects only coastwise ships, Townsend said. While it is in effect negotiations will continue until November 5, or until an agreement before that date, the union official stated. Meantime strikers and steamship operators failed to reach an agreement concerning dock employees of overseas services. These separate negotiations will continue, it was said.

SEARCH IS SPURRED FOR ROSS CAPTORS

Main Reliance Placed on Tracing Serial Numbers of Ransom Money.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Government agents combing the country for the kidnapers of Charles S. Ross stepped up their pace today as J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assumed personal charge of the widespread search.

The chief G-man, ill for several days, returned to his Washington headquarters to direct the strategy of his far-flung force.

They apparently placed their main reliance upon a nation-wide net formed by the circulation of lists of the serial numbers of the $50,000 in currency turned over to the abductors in a vain attempt to obtain the release of the 72-year-old manufacturer.

Two reports were also scrutinized by the government operatives.

The first was the snaring of three men in a police trap in Seattle. Two were wounded. Early investigation established no link with the Ross case.

The other was the story of a woman who reported she had seen four men in a car in suburban River Forest on the night Ross was kidnaped—September 25. Two of the men, she said, held an old man in the rear seat. Ross was carried off about five miles from River Forest.

Enthusiastic Garden Lovers Learn Best Methods at Constitution School

The throng above represents a section of the capacity audience attending the opening session of The Constitution's Annual Fall Garden School held yesterday in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Upwards of 700 garden enthusiasts heard the director of the school, Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, lecture on "Plant Propagation."

'WORK TO BE DONE' IS GARDENER TOPIC

last winter. Removing it in the spring, she propagated it by the layer method, producing enough plants to grow two long rows of potatoes from the single vine.

In describing how to prepare a box in which to plant seeds and cuttings, Mrs. Crown called her trusty colored gardener, Mason, to the stage to illustrate the proper mixing of the soil. She advises the use of a wheelbarrow for the mixing and she sifts the soil through a wire screen of one-quarter-inch mesh. Her formula calls for one part each of garden soil, sand, coal ashes and peat moss or leaf mould. The box must have drainage holes and plenty of roughage in the bottom to allow perfect drainage.

Cover Seed Box.

"The seed should be planted in rows, and then the box should be covered until the seeds germinate," said Mrs. Crown. "It may be covered with a piece of burlap," she continued, "but a better idea is to cover it with an Atlanta Constitution." She went on to explain that seeds could not resist doing their best in such close proximity to The Constitution because of its leadership in horticultural matters. Following the precedent set by previous sessions of The Constitution's garden school, there was not a dull moment. Mrs. Crown instantly won her audience by her engaging and informal manner of address and held it in rapt attention throughout her intimate, chatty discussion of her subject. She graciously answered questions asked by individual members of her audience.

Mrs. Crown was introduced yesterday by Mrs. Everard Richardson Jr., president of the Atlanta Junior League.

Attractive Appointments.

The director spoke from a stage attractively appointed with modernistic porch or sun parlor furniture from the up-to-date stock of Mather Brothers.

As a prelude to the lecture and also winning the approval of the audience, Sears presented a revue of smart fall and winter fashions under the direction of Miss Helen Kilpatrick, stylist. Each day of the school the Sears manninkins will display a charming and practical array of feminine costumes.

The Constitution's attendance prize of $15 was awarded yesterday to the Rosemary Garden Club, of which Mrs. S. L. Landers is president. Each day an attendance prize will be given, with a grand prize of $25 offered for the largest registration for the entire session to be awarded on the closing day.

Before announcing the prize winners, Mrs. Crown read a message from the garden division of the Fifth District of Federated Women's Clubs, announcing that its meeting scheduled for tomorrow had been postponed until the following Friday in order that its members might attend the garden school.

The doors of the auditorium will open again at 9 o'clock this morning for the registration, in which competitive enthusiasm runs high among the city's many garden clubs. The school is entirely free and especially welcomes all garden lovers and flower-minded citizens. It forms The Constitution's contribution toward an effort for more beautiful gardens and a more beautiful city in which to live.

Dictatorial Abuse of Power Charged to Governor.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Terming Governor Robert E. Quinn's declaration of martial law at Narragansett park "a flagrant and dictatorial abuse of power," the Pawtucket board of aldermen and common council tonight named a committee of three, with unlimited funds, to "protect the rights, lives and liberty" of Pawtucket residents.

Earlier military bars keeping representatives of the Providence Star-Tribune from Narragansett race track were lowered after Governor Quinn affirmed his belief in freedom of the press.

Adjutant General Herbert R. Dean, of the Rhode Island national guard, ordered Captain Harold J. Pearson, commanding 65 guardsmen who are enforcing Governor Quinn's martial law edict at the track, to admit all press representatives "upon proper identification."

GIRL TO TESTIFY FOR SELF TODAY

Margaret Drennan Expected To Claim Attack Attempt.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Staunch friends of Margaret Drennan and her mother and father testified in Middlesex county court today to lay the groundwork of a defense contention that the 20-year-old secretarial student killed Paul Reeves, 23-year-old father of two children, because he tried to attack her.

John Drennan, a metal lathe worker, said he did not know the victim of his daughter's shooting until some time after the night of September 7.

Mrs. Drennan said she wondered what was wrong when police came late in the night, got her daughter out of bed and took her away to headquarters.

A tense court room crowd, jammed in the very available seat, waited for the girl to take the stand to tell her own story, expected tomorrow.

A false start, horses that ran the wrong way and a jockey who refused to ride enlivened a horse race in Marshfield, Mass.

How much for Road Maintenance?

MILES OF ROAD SURFACE $12,000 WILL MAINTAIN FOR ONE YEAR

How much of your future road funds must go for surface maintenance? How much will be available for urgently needed new construction? This chart can help you know the answer. It shows findings from the most comprehensive cost survey of its kind ever made... based on the official records of 21 state highway departments. It covers long periods of time on 135,000 miles of highways—nearly half America's state trunk highways, under all traffic and weather conditions. And here's what it shows! Surface maintenance costs for concrete average only $103.17 per mile per year. For the next lowest paving material the cost is almost double that of concrete. And for all surfaces other than concrete, the cost is 3 1/2 times as great—although concrete in general carries the heaviest volume of traffic.

Concrete Costs Least

Concrete gives the greatest load-carrying capacity per dollar of cost. It is the safest road—non-skid, highly visible. And it saves large sums on maintenance. All good reasons why your new roads should be concrete.

KINGERY RESIGNS AS CLERK IN HOUSE

Duties With Private Firm Prevent Continuance of State Services.

Andrew J. Kingery, of Graymont-Summitt yesterday resigned as clerk to the state house of representatives, a post to which he was first elected in 1933.

Kingery several months ago accepted a position with a large Atlanta corporation and his new duties will not permit him to serve as house clerk during the coming special session of the legislature. He tendered his resignation to Speaker Roy V. Harris here yesterday and the speaker said that under the circumstances there was nothing to do but accept it. "Mr. Kingery has made the house an efficient secretary and I know that he will be of value to his new employers," Speaker Harris said. "While we are reluctant to give him up there is nothing we can do."

Joe Boone, of Irwinton, and P. T. McCutcheon Jr., of Heard county, who have been assistants to Kingery for the last four years, are said to be considering running for the place.

The house must elect its new clerk at the outset of the special session which will begin Thanksgiving Day.

President's Address Dedicating
New Federal Reserve Building

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's address at the official opening of the Federal Reserve building follows:

You have come here this afternoon for something more than a mere formality. This structure is worthy to rank among the foremost of the capital's architectural achievements, and you and I have gathered here to pay tribute to the beauty and dignity of the form wrought by those who conceived and executed this building.

But we are conscious of a larger meaning in this brief ceremony—of the role that the federal reserve plays in the broad purpose which this government must serve. That purpose is to gain for all of our people the greatest attainable measure of economic well-being, the largest degree of economic security and stability.

Mission of Reserve System.

To advance the country towards this goal is the real mission of the Federal Reserve System. It cannot be attained by that system alone, but neither can it be reached without the proper functioning of our monetary and credit machinery. That machinery must be steadily perfected and co-ordinated with all other instruments of government to promote the most productive utilization of our human and material resources. Only in that way can we hope to achieve and maintain an enduring prosperity free from the disastrous extremes of booms and depressions. Only in that way can our economic system and our democratic institutions endure.

Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since the Federal Reserve System was established. Its creation, out of the nation's banking experience from the beginning of the republic, was due to the statesmanship of President Wilson, and to the courageous leadership of the congress for which the senior senator from Virginia, Carter Glass, will always deserve the nation's gratitude.

Honor to President Wilson.

It is fitting that President Wilson's portrait in bronze should have the place of honor in the main entrance to this building. And it is appropriate that the words inscribed under it should be taken from his first inaugural address. Let me quote them:

"We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be."

Those penetrating words admirably apply to our banking system, which must be constantly alert to changing conditions in order that it may be prepared to adapt itself to the going and changing needs of our people in their daily life and work.

The Federal Reserve System, as it was originally established, was adapted to the pre-war world and brought about a great improvement in the money system. Steps were taken in 1917 to adapt it to the urgent necessities of a war-ridden world. In mobilizing the country's gold reserves and in facilitating the government's vast financing operations, the reserve system performed a vital role in the winning of the war.

Change in System Needed.

It is clear now, in retrospect, that if further changes to meet post-war conditions had been made in our banking system in the 1920's, it would have been in a far better position to moderate the great mass of small depositors, the great depression. But from the end of the war, until we were in the midst of economic collapse a decade later, no changes were made in the banking structure to make it function more effectively in the public interest.

Since that time the nation has done much to improve its banking system. It must continue step by step to make the banking system what it should be. We must not complacently suppose that we have achieved perfection. We have provided for the insurance of deposits for the benefit of the great mass of small depositors. By the banking and security change acts of 1933, 1934 and 1935, the Federal Reserve System was given increased power to improve banking conditions and to aid the government in combating practices which were evil in their results. Those powers had been concentrated to a greater degree than before in a single public body, so that they can be used promptly and effectively in accordance with the changing needs of the country; 1937 is not 1913; nor do we wait to turn the hands of the clock back.

Tested Quarter of Century.

The Federal Reserve System, tested by nearly a quarter of a century of operation, is a public institution capable of adaptation to future, as it has been to past needs and conditions. It is a piece of machinery vital to the nation's steady progress towards the goal of a sounder banking system capable of contributing its full share to lasting economic progress and well-being.

The board of governors, whose building we are dedicating today, was reconstituted by the banking act of 1935. To this public body congress has entrusted broad powers which enable it to affect the volume and the cost of money, thus exerting a powerful influence upon the expansion and contraction in the flow of money through the channels of agriculture, trade and industry. In this way much can be done toward the maintenance of more stable employment. Much can be done to aid in achieving greater stability of the true value of the dollar.

Powers Are Public Concern.

By their nature these important powers are a public concern and the responsibility for their exercise is properly vested in a public body. Much as they may contribute to the country's progress, monetary powers possess no peculiar magic. They are not

BALD

Eighteen years ago Paul A. Thomas devised the first accurate, reliable method of treating local scalp disorders. Then, as today, Thomas treatment ended dandruff, stopped abnormal hairfall and promoted hair growth on thin and bald spots. It consistently produces these results—and because of its success, the Thomas' have grown to an organization with 45 offices throughout the United States and Canada.

Today Thomas treatment is more effective than it has ever been. New methods are constantly being tested and when something is proved to be of definite value, Thomas clients are the first to receive benefit. Basically, however, Thomas treatment remains the same, because no method has ever been found which produces results as consistently as does the original Thomas method.

A Graphic History of America for You

Here is the History of our America in a form you have never before seen—a Histo-Graph from the earliest Viking voyagers to the latest supreme court decision in 1937.

You see history at a glance by association of one event with another.

On a single large sheet, the story of every square mile of territory in America is portrayed with a graphic picture of how each state was formed; the story of the early explorations and discoveries; the formation of the 13 colonies; acquisitions of territory, and winning of the west. It is packed with statistics of population for each century; state capitals and areas, political changes, thumb-nail biographies and national events during the administration of each President; the rise of industry, mass production, literature, art, science, invention and political parties; constitutional amendments, and origins of the earliest American cities in each state.

The Histo-Graph is to history what maps are to geography, or what blueprints are to the architect. At a glance you can locate any principal event in American history, and in the margin find out what was going on at the same time in Europe.

HOUSING DEFENDED
BY NATHAN STRAUS

New Yorker Takes Charge of Federal Program, Disputes Ickes' Statement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Nathan Straus, New York business executive, became administrator of the government's new $528,000,000 low cost housing program today and promptly disputed contentions that it is crippled at the start by legislative restrictions.

After receiving his commission from President Roosevelt, Straus was asked by reporters what he thought of a statement by Secretary Ickes that "even in the best of circumstances it will be difficult for a housing authority to operate under the Wagner-Steagall bill."

Ickes had explained that the act limits the cost of any project to $1,000 a room ($1,250 a room in large cities); that it requires a contribution from the city of 10 per cent of the cost, and that its requirement that slums must be torn down for every new project built would be expensive because "slum property is often highly priced."

Straus declared: "I built my own project," Hillside Homes, in the Bronx, for $1,045 a room. Why shouldn't I be able to do it at $1,250?"

$75,666 REPORTED
AT CHEST RALLY

Cates, campaign director last fall, was guest of honor. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave the invocation.

Gordon, a worker in many Chest campaigns and a member of the Chest budget committee this year, said:

"From service on that committee I know of the pitiful results of our failure to provide enough money for those in need."

Not Enough Money.
"When we faced the people who supervise the 33 agencies, we were forced to tell them at the outset that there was not enough money to go around."

"They ask us what they are to do about the hungry, the sick, the blind, the needy, who come to them for assistance, and we are forced to say that every dollar must be stretched, every possible need met, but after that, there just isn't any more because the people of Atlanta would not provide it."

"Failure again this year will cause more suffering. If every worker in the Chest campaign could just see this side of the picture, if every potential subscriber could just hear these pleas on behalf of people in desperate need who must listen to the 'no money' that means the death of their hope, the Chest would be filled to overflowing."

AIR CRASH VICTIMS

Hears Plane Crash.
Sunday night Profitt heard the hum of airplane motors, saw the sleek airliner battling blizzard and a few minutes later heard it thud into a snow-drifted mountain peak. He hurried through the night toward the head of Humpy canyon, and there lay the bodies of 15 men and four women, scattered about the battered wreckage of the elaborate transport.

Profitt headed for civilization to report his find, but by the time he reached the nearest ranch, approximately 15 miles away, searching planes had located the wreckage and ground parties were en route to the scene.

Mail Hunted in Snow.
Postal officials probed about in the snow today for the few pieces of mail still missing. Practically all of it was recovered yesterday and brought to Salt Lake City.

The Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, state aeronautics officials and the plane's operator pressed investigations in an effort to determine whether mechanical failure or adverse weather was responsible for the tragedy.

QUINN IS DEMOTED TO CRIMINAL COURT

Bazemore Replaces Veteran Chief Deputy in Surprise Move.

In a surprise move yesterday, Sheriff J. I. Lowry replaced Emmett L. Quinn, chief deputy for four years, and appointed Deputy J. D. Bazemore, previously assigned to Fulton criminal court, to Quinn's position.

Quinn was assigned to the criminal court at a salary drop of $600 a year. Salary of the chief deputy in the sheriff's office is $300 a month, while that of the criminal court assignment is $250 monthly.

Notified Tuesday.
Quinn was notified of the change late Tuesday when he returned to Atlanta from Denver, where he had represented the Georgia Federation of Labor at the AFL convention. Notice was given him in a letter, and yesterday he assumed the criminal court assignment while Bazemore continued to hold the chief deputy assignment. Neither had any comment.

Lowry Denies Politics.
Sheriff Lowry denied that political differences or Quinn's pronounced stand with the American Federation of Labor had anything to do with the change.

The sheriff last night said: "I wish to state emphatically that there was no labor or political significance to the change in the sheriff's office affecting the chief deputyship. That the taxpayers of Fulton county may receive the most efficient service, changes are necessarily made from time to time affecting the duties of the personnel in my office. Contrary to published reports, the following committee was appointed by me to manage my recent campaign: H. L. Simmons, J. Gordon Hardy, E. L. Quinn, J. D. Bazemore, and S. W. Sharpe."

"His death, said Assistant Medical Examiner Weinberg, was 'probably due to suicide.'"

ATLANTA BANK HEAD
TO AID 9 GOVERNORS

Ryburn G. Clay Will Handle Funds for Southeastern Advertising Campaign.

Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton National Bank, yesterday was named treasurer of the Southeastern Governors' Conference.

The appointment was announced by L. W. (Chip) Robert, who is industrial consultant of the conference conducting a national advertising campaign of the southeast and its resources.

Clay who was in Washington yesterday to attend the dedication of the new federal reserve bank will handle the funds for the nine governors composing the conference.

"His appointment, made under the authority of Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, is ideal for the conference," Robert said yesterday. "Mr. Clay long has been interested in the economic, industrial and agricultural future of the south and his interest in national affairs is well known."

The Atlanta banker will participate in the national advertising campaign now being carried on by the nine governors throughout the nation in national periodicals and newspapers.

Clay is a member of the Federal Reserve Bank board and was formerly a member of the public works advisory board of Georgia through 1936.

The aims of the conference of governors are to establish equitable freight rates in the southeast, adopt uniform taxation policies, bring about and maintain a friendly labor policy between employer and employee, and to co-ordinate with the federal government in proper policies.

PORTLAND, Maine, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Maine transportation and industrial officials decided here today to raise a "war chest" to fight southern attempts to obtain freight rate parity with New England to midwest and northwest markets.

The committees, conferees said, will hire counsel to oppose the

HOUSEWIVES URGED TO HELP CLEAN UP STREETS AND LOTS

Plans Laid by Women's Clubs To Remove Unsanitary
Garbage Containers.

Atlanta housewives will be asked to pay more attention to their garbage collector in the future as a city-wide campaign to clean up streets and vacant lots is launched this afternoon by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs.

Because countless housekeepers do not know the hour the trashman arrives, many a basket or can of garbage sits on the sidewalk all day, officials of the club said. This unsightly garbage is also unsanitary and destroys the beauty of the city.

Representatives Meet.
Representatives of nearly a score of women's civic organizations composing the Atlanta federation are to gather at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. James R. Little, 2472 Peachtree road, president of the federation, to map plans for the clean-up campaign and to confer with H. J. Cates, head of the city sanitary department.

"We are going to ask Mr. Cates to furnish us with the hours of collection of garbage in the 10 sanitary districts in the city," said Mrs. Little. "Then we will communicate this routine to the housewives in every section of the city, so they can put their trash out before the garbage truck arrives." Mrs. Little said members of the clubs forming the federation will be asked to co-operate with the inspectors in the sanitary districts, pointing out unsightly places and aiding in every way in eliminating them.

Covers for Trucks.
"For one thing, we are going to ask that the city put covers over the trucks to prevent trash being spilled on the streets after it is taken up," asserted the president.

"We plan to ask the city to remove kudzu vines from all vacant lots, because in these damp places mosquitoes breed. We hope to get owners of all vacant lots to clean them up too, but if they will not, we are going to ask the city to clean them and send the bill to the owner," she said.

"Only through the efforts of an organization such as the federation can we accomplish this important objective of making Atlanta 'clean-up conscious,'" Mrs. Little asserted.

Cates said last night he welcomed the co-operation of the women and declared their help will do much in making and keeping the city cleaner.

Mrs. Ed L. Almond and Mrs. Ernest L. Rhoads are co-chairmen of the civic and parks committee of the federation.

Permanent Sanitation.
They have announced it is the intention of the federation to campaign for better sanitary conditions from now on—not for just a short time.

Clubs expected to send representatives to the meeting this afternoon are: Atlanta section of the Council of Jewish Women, Atlanta Woman's Club, Boulevard Park Women's Club, Civic Club of West End, College Park Woman's Club, Decatur Woman's Club, East Point Woman's Club, Garden Hills Woman's Club, Grant Park Woman's Club, Hapeville Woman's Club, Home Maker's Club of Kirkwood, Kirkwood Civic League, Peachtree Hills Woman's Club, West End Woman's Club, Woman's Chamber of Commerce, Woodcrest Woman's Club, and a number of others in greater Atlanta.

TINY PERFORMER THRILLS IN BIG TOP

Leaps From Dome of Tent to Trapeze Below.

If you want to see hair stand up on a bald-headed man and 16,000 Adams apples jump at once, don't miss seeing Mlle. Gillette's leap from the dome of the world's largest big top to a trapeze below when Ringling Brothers-Barum & Bailey's combined circus comes to Atlanta on Monday and Tuesday, November 1 and 2.

The little Gillette is rated as the daredevil of the big show, yet she is modest, even timid, in real life. She is looked upon as the most home-loving trapeze among the 1,600 people with the "greatest show on earth." Almost nightly she prepares an after-the-show supper for close friends among the 800 performers.

A multitude of other special new acts and features are scheduled to appear on the program of the circus this year. The performances will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock at night. Doors will be open in time to allow visitors to view the mammoth menagerie.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 21, 1937.

WITHOUT COMMITMENT

The American delegation to the conference of the nine powers, signers of the Chinese non-aggression treaty, will enter the discussions at Brussels on October 30 with absolutely no commitment or obligation to any other government.

This was made plain by President Roosevelt on Tuesday night, following a lengthy conference between the President and Norman H. Davis, head of the United States delegation.

Administration opponents have seized upon the President's earlier statements to circulate rumors that Washington had already decided upon a tentative program, in co-operation with Great Britain, looking for cessation of hostilities in the Sino-Japanese conflict. It is evident, from the President's words, that these rumors are entirely unfounded.

The United States, as made plain in President Roosevelt's Chicago speech and in statements from various officials since, seeks only a peaceful means of preventing the spread of war over other sections of the world. America's only interest is to avoid a world conflict with its ever-present danger of involvement for this nation.

The policy followed by the American delegation to the Brussels conference will, it is assured, be dictated solely by Washington. London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Tokyo, Nanking will have nothing whatever to do with it. The outcome of the discussions, in so far as they affect America, will be predicated solely upon what is best and safest for America.

There need be no fear that this country will become involved in foreign quarrels which do not concern us. The present administration is fully conversant with the predominant determination of the American people to stay out of war and may be depended upon to maintain the happy status of peace.

ADVANCE PAYMENTS ON DEATH

The Italian cabinet has levied new taxes upon the people of that nation "to meet the cost of developing the empire and participating in the international arms race."

Thus the Italian people—laborers, industrialists, and even the farmer laboring upon his hillside acres—pay more tribute to the gods of war and make down payments in advance on the instruments that may, far too soon, sow violent death among them and their kind of many nations.

The whole world knows what is meant when Italy speaks of "developing the empire." The object lesson of Ethiopia is too recent to be forgotten. It means raining high explosive bombs upon helpless people as the land of their fathers is torn from their keeping.

The international arms race, today a game of diplomatic bluff, will inevitably lead to a new World War unless the people themselves awake to their peril and speak an unmistakable "No!" The pennies and pesos and lira, won by back-breaking toil by simple peasants, are taken by the tax collector to pay for instruments of modern death.

Historians of today refer to the primitive ages of mankind as "prehistoric." When the history of the world is complete it is probable that the years in which we now live will be called, by wiser and better men, the "presanity age."

PERPLEXING MOTHERHOOD

Through all the ages of man the supreme example of steadfast human love has been the love of the mother for her child. Poets have written their most lovely verses about motherhood and artists have found their greatest inspiration in the Madonna and Babe.

Yet there have been recent recorded happenings which arouse wonder whether even the love of a mother for her own children is, in this topsy-turvy age of today, undergoing change.

In three recent divorce cases the mothers have, willingly, given up their children to the fathers. These children were not old. They ranged in age from 3 to 12 years. There were in each of the three cases, two children.

No one can know the secret, inner causes of these startling exceptions to the accepted rule of eternal mother love. The alleged reasons were, in two cases, that the women were tired of being "tied down," and in the third case the woman was in love with another man who did not want children in the new home.

Whatever the reasons, however, for these examples of failure of the maternal instinct, it is strange, and startling, to find that there are modern women who thus violate all the ancient traditions.

TO CLEAN OUT "JOINTS"

Mayor Hartsfield, addressing a group of citizens of the Formwalt street vicinity, pledged his administration not only to aid in ending vice conditions in that community, but to undertake a similar "clean-up" all over the city.

"You cannot simply push the criminal element out of one section into another," said the mayor. "You must eliminate it from your town as a whole as much as possible."

Of course, the mayor is right. Mere shifting of undesirable characters from one section to another results only in spreading the moral infection. The problem must be attacked on a city-wide scale if results desired are to be achieved.

The existence of houses of ill-fame, of blind tigers and other breeding places of crime is a recognized condition in Atlanta. Not only in the Formwalt vicinity, where good citizens, aroused by conditions which endanger the future of every child, have organized to stamp out crime, but in other areas over the city there are crime spots operated in flagrant defiance of the law.

Every such place is a sore spot which infects the entire community with crime. It is from these ill-cited centers that crime breeds, it is from the young boys and girls who frequent them that the ranks of the law-breakers are recruited, and it is from these starting points that youth begins the journey down that sad road which leads to prison and the death chair.

Mayor Hartsfield calls on all good citizens to co-operate with the police in their efforts to eliminate these centers of moral and physical disease. That he will receive 100 per cent response from every Atlantan with the welfare of the city at heart is a foregone conclusion.

Vice and crime and immorality cannot exist, in any degree, without the entire city feeling, in one way or another, the touch of the leprosy hand.

THE FANNIN MEMORIAL

At Blue Ridge, the county seat, Fannin county today will dedicate a shaft of Georgia marble, erected in the city park, to the memory of her sons who gave their lives for their country in the World War.

Heading the list of prominent speakers who will take part in the exercises will be Senator Walter F. George, Governor Rivers, Representative B. Frank Wheelchel, of the ninth congressional district; United States Judge Bascom S. Deaver and Pat Kelley, American Legion commander for Georgia.

The classic lines of the marble shaft lift toward the Georgia sky. Georgia sunshine will reflect from its polished sides. Today the bands will play and the crowds will listen to the carefully chosen words of those who pay tribute to heroes.

Somewhere in the throngs will be the mothers of the men who died. In their hearts will mingle sorrow and pride, and in their memories will be pictures of the little boys who once stood beside their knees and who grew up to manhood only to surrender their lives when their country called.

It is well for Fannin, and all other communities, to honor and to remember, forever, the men who died. The stone memorial will always stand as an inspiration to coming generations, teaching that there is something more in life than material gain, that there are duties and ideals that call for sacrifice, even, if need be, of life itself.

Such memorials serve also as warnings, reminding the nation of the sorrow that is the inevitable concomitant of war. They stand as silent sentinels in the cause of peace.

The Japanese foreign office issues solemn avowals of its benign intentions in China—perhaps the best bits of dead-pan acting since Buster Keaton's heyday.

For Italy's benefit, Chamberlain remarks that Britain never holds a grudge. We don't know how Rome will take it, but Ed and Wally will be amazed.

Strange as it seems, the prehistoric monster, 80 feet long and unearthed in Utah, was not plastered with interstate bus licenses.

Editorial of the Day

OBJECT LESSON

(From the New York Herald Tribune.)

Again the country is treated to an example of the efficacy of the railway labor act. One remembers that last August the operating brotherhoods seemed on the verge of tying up the whole transportation system. Their direct negotiations with the carriers had failed, leaving them in a defiant mood. They voted to strike, even set the date, when in walked the National Mediation Board. Today we have an agreement which grants the men a rise in pay, but not enough to bankrupt the companies. No hostilities, no interruption of traffic, but instead, apparently, a better understanding than ever. To quote Dr. William M. Leiserson, spokesman for the mediation board, "The spirit in which the two sides to the controversy receded from their original positions as facts were developed was the biggest factor in the settlement."

So the old question arises with renewed force: Why—if the railway labor act works so successfully in preventing railway strikes (not in the 11 years since its enactment has there been serious conflict in this field)—is congress, or the state legislatures, so dilatory in extending its provisions and principles to cover other labor disputes? The shipping industry, for example, is only next in importance as a public carrier to the railroads and even more intimately a concern of the federal government. Yet congress has done nothing to remedy its constant disruption by strikes which often take on the character of mutiny.

It seems obvious that all essential public services should have the protection against strikes which the railroads enjoy. But so, for the matter of that, should all industry, at least in some degree. The Department of Labor, to be sure, has its mediators. This state has its mediation board. Is there any reason in common sense why strikes should be countenanced before such machinery has had a chance to function?

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

FUSE LIGHTER WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—When Hamilton Fish gets on the air Friday night and charges that Franklin Roosevelt is another Woodrow Wilson leading us into the shambles of a world war, the Republican congressmen hope to light a fuse leading right into the middle of the special session.

Waiting for signatures on the speaker's desk is a petition for the discharge of the committee which is sitting on Mr. Fish's own neutrality bill. That piece of legislation is short and sweet, and, if passed, would force the President to "be neutral" whether or no. It would stop shipment of all arms and ammunition to anybody, anywhere, any time.

Mr. Fish explains that the act was introduced to meet a specific case, i. e., the Far Eastern trouble. But once the situation changed, it could, if necessary, be repealed.

NEUTRALITY DRIVE As ranking Republican and oldest member in point of service on the house foreign affairs committee, Mr. Fish purports to speak for the Republican party on international relations. It has been hinted he may organize and lead a neutrality drive in the house.

Meanwhile, the pro-neutrality crowd, inside and outside of the State Department, is still hopeful that it might wake up some morning and find the law invoked. The idea being, if we did invoke the law and thus went on record as neutral between China and Japan, it might help, rather than hurt, in getting some co-operation from Japan in the nine-power treaty negotiations.

It is interesting to note (and Japan has probably noted it) that the State Department officials who are in favor of invoking the neutrality law are being referred to frequently and generally as "pro-Japanese" by some of their colleagues.

MINIMUM WAGES FOR WOMEN How the supreme court's changing its mind has affected an important conference which opens at the Labor Department on Thursday can now be told.

The conferees, headed by Secretary of Labor Perkins and representatives of the Women's Bureau, are officials from the 24 states, including Puerto Rico, which have minimum wage laws for women.

Back in 1923, the supreme court said that the District of Columbia law, which prescribed a minimum wage for women based on the cost of living, was unconstitutional. In 1936, it held invalid a New York law which fixed such wages on the basis of fair value of services rendered.

However, when the Washington state law was tested in the court in 1937 it was upheld. Legal experts interpreted the decision as being so broad as not to bar any particular method by which a state may arrive at the minimum wage it permits.

TEN STATES HAVE LAWS Today ten such state laws have a "cost of living" determination of the minimum wage, four have a flat rate, seven prescribe a fair value of services rendered, while three have held the fair value and cost of living basis.

This is the seventh conference of federal-state minimum wage officials. But it is the first one to discuss the cost of living as a basis for setting minimum wage standards.

In other words, the growing concern of the state minimum wage boards in trying to arrive at a minimum pay rate, regardless of the provisions of their particular laws, appears to be how much it costs a woman worker to live.

To aid in this discussion, the federal bureau has worked out a detailed list of the items which should go into a woman's budget, including even the number of hats, shoes, dresses and the like that she must buy in a year. It has not, however, set prices on these articles, leaving that to the states, in view of a wide variation of prices.

ARKANSAS ELECTION Now that the ballots have been counted in the Arkansas senatorial election, three groups are busy taking stock as to how the outcome affects them. They are:

1. Those trying to organize farm tenants into a CIO union. They fear a setback in their plans with the defeat of their ally, Governor Bailey. At the present time, they are waiting for a reply to their request to the Department of Justice for protection in their organizing activities in Arkansas.

2. Certain New Dealers, who are wondering if the election is signaling a liberal-conservative cleavage in the Democratic ranks across the south.

3. The Republicans, who are taking the outcome as a revolt against Rooseveltism.

SPEECH RESTORED STRATEGY Here is the way one New Deal adviser, just returned from abroad, sums up the effect of the President's Chicago speech on European ears:

"The stop-war negotiations in Europe had become so involved in tactics that a definite strategy was lost. Everything was centered on the next move. The speech put the French-British efforts back on the broad basis of a general strategy again—got them out of the mess of tactics."

What We'd Like to Know.

One of those little paragraphs of odds and ends that sometimes fill little spots in the columns of the page, stated the other day that the Northern Pacific railway was completed by the driving of a gold spike in 1833. And the writer wanted to know what became of the spike.

There is one question of greater academic importance this column would like to ask.

All the encyclopedias available say it wasn't until 1869 that the steel rails spanned the continent. Chicago, they say, was first reached by rail in 1852.

So, if the Northern Pacific was completed in 1833, this column would like to know why the Forty-niners went through such agonies in crossing the continent by covered wagon, when they might have ridden a train.

A Query

Answered.

Mrs. R. F. Harwell, of Oxford, Ga., supplies a correct quotation, with the name of the author, in response to appeal in this column last week: Here 'tis:
There is but one virtue;
To help human beings to a free and beautiful life—
But one sin;
To do them indifference or cruel hurt—
The love of humanity is the whole of humanity,
This is goodness, this is humanism,
This is social conscience."

Eighty-two Candles
On Her Cake.

Mrs. Eric Walker, of Riverdale, Ga., has a mother-in-law of whom she is exceedingly fond. The older lady is 82 years old—she enjoyed her 82nd birthday party just a few days ago.

And Mrs. Walker writes that the one thing lacking to make her mother-in-law completely happy is to see that birthday party mentioned in this paper. "She has taken the paper all her life," she came to live with us," Mrs. Walker writes. We now take the paper and read it to her or tell her the news. And she wants to see her birthday party in The Constitution so bad."

So, let us tell this morning, about Mrs. Bob Walker's birthday party.

It was at the home of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Walker.

The house was decorated with dahlias and garden flowers. Old and new friends dropped in all day and at noon the birthday dinner revealed everything imaginable in good things to eat on the groaning table. The piece de resistance, of course, was the huge cake with 82 candles. This was the gift of Mrs. Walker's granddaughters, Mrs. Dozier Barnett and Miss Irene Walker. And the old lady was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts of every description.

Among those present at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Eric Walker and family; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Walker; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Creel; Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus C. Creel; Mr. and Mrs. Dozier Barnett; Mrs. Will Begett; Mrs. Idus Barnett; Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Ragsdale; Theron Creel, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Timms and family; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Creel and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. George Mayo.

I hope Mrs. Bob Walker reads this report of her birthday party and understands that it is one more present, from Silhouettes.

And that she will enjoy them, many more similar occasions. For, after all, one is still a youngster at 82 and should have a long and useful life to come.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, October 21, 1912:

"A splendid audience was present at Sunday afternoon's free concert, but the fact that only slightly more than half were in their seats when Dr. Starnes began the overture to 'Alessandro Stradella' called for a severe rebuke from W. Woods White, of the musical association, given during the reading of announcements."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, October 21, 1887:

"Editor Richardson, of the Macdon Telegraph, visited the fair Wednesday. We trust he came out whole, and not as a crushed strawberry."

Mixed Language.

In 1068, the last Anglo-Saxon King of England, Harold II, was slain and succeeded by an illegitimately-born Norman usurper, William of Normandy. Because of him the English language of today stems 60 per cent from Latin, as he caused French to blend with the Teutonic language of the Angles and Saxons.

New America.

If you want to see New America—and who doesn't?—you can take a car from Berlin, Germany, via Kustrin on the Oder till you see the words, "New America," on the signpost. It is a small village of less than a dozen houses.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Tempest NEW YORK, Oct. 20. In the Teapot of the nine powers converge on Brussels to strive for a happy solution of the problems of a troubled world, solemn news comes from Pawtucket, R. I., where another undeclared war is raging in awful fury. It is the war of the Wild Irish Roses, in which the Governor, Mr. Robert Quinn, has mobilized the national guard to punish Mr. Walter O'Hara, the proprietor of the Narragansett horse park for the crime of less majesty.

Mr. O'Hara, through his own newspaper, supposedly called the Governor a name some time ago, and one swear word led to another until now the armed forces of the state are on active duty in the field and a pathetic mass of inoffensive noncombatant touts, trainers, swipes, monkeys, ginneys, mutual clerks, sweepers and horse players are caught between the lines.

The great, free American press, handmaid of our liberties, also seems to have caught her jab in the wringer, for she is yelling bloody murder at this writing. The Governor's army has ejected from the zone of combat a journalist representing Mr. O'Hara's paper and the editors are raising the dread cry of "censorship."

In this situation, the war correspondents of the eastern seaboard are kissing their families farewell and preparing to leave for the front, and who knows but that the war of the wild Irish Roses will develop its own Webb Millers and Floyd Gibbonses, for it has all the symptoms of a terrible mess.

Equipment The problem of field equipment has been worrying some of the journalists, however, and when your correspondent wired the war correspondent of the Daily Walking Horse at the front he told to bring his own dice, a rabbit's foot and plenty of fresh money.

Your correspondent talked with Governor Quinn by phone and received word that that other wild Irish Rose, Mr. O'Hara, had attempted to set at naught the laws of the fair state of Rhode Island and would be restrained by the full might of the unconquerable warriors of his first Rhode Island regiment of foot.

Mr. Eugene Moriarty, another wild Irish Rose, who is manager of Mr. O'Hara's fearless journal, declared there was much more in the situation than meets the naked eye, and Mr. Mulligan, the editor of the Pawtucket Times, which is neutral in the conflict, said there was even more to the situation than meets the nose, although the nose grasps a pretty fair idea.

Mr. Mulligan, an Irish Rose, if you will, is not wild yet, but neutrality undoubtedly is a serious strain on a Mulligan in a non-private conflict involving the Quinns, the O'Haras and the Moriartys and a Keneally, which is the name of the journalist who was rushed out of the war zone by a detachment of Governor Quinn's invincible Legions.

Grave Charge Governor Quinn has been contending all along that Mr. O'Hara's horse park has attracted to Rhode Island undesirable characters of extreme unscrupulousness who were not above acts of dishonesty. This is indeed a grave charge, never having been heard of before in connection with horse running, which, as everyone knows, is the sport of Kings, patronized by the very best people.

It would be an astonishing thing and a great shock to the Rhode Island community if it were true that Mr. O'Hara's horse park had drawn persons capable of telling falsehoods or fumbling up the odds or using an electric gimmick on man's best friend, the steed. All right-minded citizens will hope and pray that the wild Irish Rose of the state-house is mistaken in his foul aspersions.

The governor also charges that Mr. O'Hara has had an evil effect on the purity of public office in Pawtucket; another unthinkable allegation against not only the high character of the local statesmen but the fair name of horse racing as well.

Just one happy fact remains. It will be a small war, because if more than 10 wild Irish get to fighting at one time in the limited area of Rhode Island they are certain to slip over into Connecticut or Massachusetts to find room in which to take their swings.

Then they will be arrested and interned until the end of the war of the Wild Irish Roses.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

WHEN WE KNOW HIM.

Two men have just left my study. They came in here to discuss a difference which had brought great grief to them and their families—a difference over a very, very small matter—a matter so small and petty that I refuse to mention it. What was I to do? There was no use debating the issue because there really wasn't any issue involved. I didn't know just what to do, so I asked the Lord to help me.

We read together that passage about the beam and the mote. And then we read that passage about coming to the altar with voice of heart, etc. And then we prayed together. And then I told them a story about a certain man that they both knew well—a man who had been grossly mistreated, but who refused to be embittered. They confessed their faults one to the other, grasped hands, and went away planning a fishing trip.

And I turned back to my work, repeating the little poem:

"When we get to know a fellow,
Know his every mood and whim,
We begin to understand him,
And cease to scorn and anger;
For with understanding always Prejudices disappear."

We begin to find his virtues
And his faults we cease to tell,
For seldom late the fellow
When we know him very well."

Brothers Forget Their Relationship When They Fight For an Estate

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Plans to improve mankind by arbitrary measures usually fail because they are based on wishful thinking instead of facts. Do you wonder why so much effort, so long continued, has failed to establish the brotherhood of man? Because men do not desire brotherhood.

Men profess to believe in equality, but what they believe in is their own equality with their betters, not their inferiors' equality with them. And the desire for brotherhood is qualified in the same way.

If Americans desired the brotherhood of man, it would be an established fact before another sunset, and nothing under heaven could prevent it.

Desire is the strongest force in the world—the one motive that overcomes all others—and therefore must be the foundation and support of every human enterprise that succeeds and endures.

We have seen that a minority, driven by desire, can effect a change in our laws and customs; but we have seen also that the new law cannot endure if the majority desires something else.

Much sad experience has shown that the desire for brotherhood seldom survives good fortune. As the newly-rich seem to feel no further need of religion, so the roustabout who is made foreman no longer sees virtue in comradeship. For which he blames some distant capitalist, is caused by the unfairness and petty tyranny of some small-fry boss whose belief in brotherhood was sacrificed to the joy of bossing.

Brotherhood can be established only by teaching people to desire it, and the desire can grow only in the soil of self-interest. A few great souls are unselfish, but self-interest is the one and only cause to which all men are loyal.

Before self-interest and brotherhood can be reconciled, men must get a new and broader vision. They must see that we are all individual parts of a whole which belongs to all of us; that the good of one is the good of all and the hurt of one the concern of all; that we are tied together like mountain climbers; that our welfare, at the last accounting, must be mutual like that of adventurers who travel into an unknown land in search of treasure, one navigating, one cooking, one treating disease, but all succeeding or failing together.

When we understand that, self-interest will make brotherhood desirable and brothers we shall be.

New Anti-Religious Campaign.

PARIS.—A demand for an intensified anti-religious campaign is being made in the Soviet press, says a Reuter message.

In urging all loyal inhabitants of the Soviet Union to increase anti-religious propaganda, the Leningradskaya Pravda affirms that true Bolshevism must continue to be the implacable enemy of any form of religious observances. The newspaper states that while the Soviet constitution respects religious freedom, at the same time it permits anti-religious propaganda.

PROBE OF RACKETS DIRECTS SPOTLIGHT BACK TO BONDSMEN

Solicitor General's Office Gathers Fresh Evidence on Hijacking Activities.

The Fulton county grand jury, seated after a day and a half of outside work investigating county matters, will swing into its police probe this morning, turning its attention back to professional bondsmen previously called in for questioning.

Several bondsmen whose records have been in the hands of the grand jury will be called back for further questioning along with witnesses who were unexpectedly dismissed Tuesday without being questioned.

Indictments Expected.

The grand jury is believed to be ready to indict the "higher ups" but is holding off in order to pile up more than one count on each

When interviewed recently, Mrs. Daher, who has lived at 177 Hunter street for the past 27 years, spoke as follows: "I have been in business at the Atlanta City Market for the past eleven years, and my husband and two daughters have helped me with the work. This large building and cement floor seemed to give all of us colds and coughs during the winter months, and up to the time we began using Menthon-Mulsion, there always seemed to be one of us at home sick with a cold or cough. Now, we keep Menthon-Mulsion in our medicine chest at all times, and at the first sign of a cough or cold we begin taking it and find that Menthon-Mulsion keeps us practically free of this trouble. Singin' in the Valley Scheduled at Church

Singin' will be heard in the valley instead of shoutin' when the Fulton County Singing convention meets at the Bellwood Baptist church Sunday.

A singing audience of 500 is expected. Also four quartets will be present, according to Miss O. M. Rickerson, secretary. She said the Dixie, the Stroud, the Riverside and the Grayson quartets will sing. W. J. Stansell, president, will lead the services.

While Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews was doing outside work questioning witnesses yesterday, more evidence was being gathered in the solicitor general's office in regard to hijacking activities and the "protective" rackets of hijackers.

The present grand jury has little more than a week left until it is discharged, October 29. In its presentments, it is expected to recommend that the racket probe be carried on by the next grand jury.

Results of county department investigations will also be revealed in the presentments.

Jurors in High Spirits.

Grand jurors were in high spirits yesterday and expressed satisfaction over progress made with the racketeering probe. Special Prosecutor Andrews indicated that "vital" evidence was placed before the jury by witnesses Monday.

The grand jury will turn the heat on witnesses today who fail to remember, it was said. Pictures of the lottery "big shots" will be used again to refresh memory of those who "just can't remember" who hired them to write the "bug" or who guaranteed them they would furnish fines and bonds.

Meanwhile, reports persisted that the "bug" still thrives. Grand jurors, however, chose to regard the arrests of two negro writers lightly. The "higher ups," anxious to keep the "bug" quiet during the grand jury heat, were reported to be tipping off the solicitor general's office of any activity by "independents" in the lottery game.

$50,000 IS ASKED AS CRASH DAMAGE

Woman Fatally Hurt in Ambulance; Undertaker Sued.

A $50,000 damage suit was filed in Fulton superior court yesterday against Paul T. Donehoo, Atlanta undertaker, as an aftermath of an ambulance crash a year ago.

The crash occurred last October 27 at the intersection of Capitol and Georgia avenues, the petition said. Mrs. Richard Mayo, riding in the ambulance at the time with her daughter, was severely injured and died May 7, 1937, the petition adds, charging the injuries were the direct cause of her death.

Named as joint defendants are Charlie Glosson, driver of the ambulance; and J. C. Almand, D. N. McCurdy and J. Sprayberry, owners of the truck which crashed with the ambulance.

Petitioners Richard Mayo and Mrs. Hiram Kuykendall, children of Mrs. Mayo, charge both drivers with negligence.

In addition to Mrs. Ireland, other survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Fargo Ballet, of Bronxville, N. Y., and Mrs. Robert Griffith, of Atlanta, and a son, W. L. Reynolds, of Jacksonville.

Funeral services were held yesterday from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ireland. The Rev. Marvin Franklin officiated with burial in Elmwood cemetery.

Jung Pictures Dreams As 'Unconscious Events'

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 20. (AP)—Dr. C. C. Jung, famous Zurich psychologist, said today that dreams are born of unconscious events.

"I never, if I can help it, interpret one dream by itself," the speaker said in the first of the Terry lectures at Yale University.

"As there is continuity in consciousness, despite the fact that it is regularly interrupted by sleep, there is probably also a continuity of unconscious processes and perhaps even more so than with the events of consciousness."

"In any case my experience is in favor of the probability that dreams are the visible links in a chain of unconscious events."

Dr. Jung disagreed with Freud, who believes dreams are a "mere facade behind which something has been carefully hidden."

Hughes Tickled As Lawyer Calls Court a Puzzle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A government attorney stood before the supreme court today and called it a "puzzle."

Chief Justice Hughes smiled broadly at the remark by Paul A. Freund, a special assistant to Attorney General Cummings.

Freund made the comment—in fun—in response to a humorous statement by the chief justice that the court was not a "game."

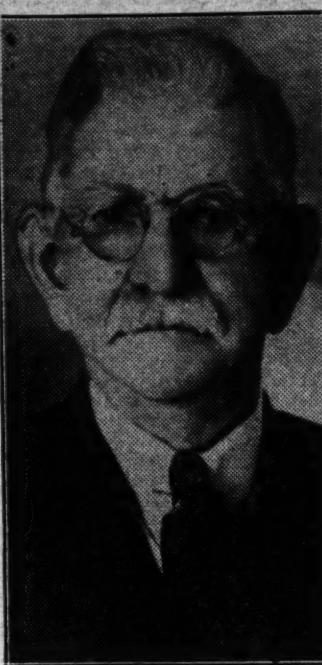

The repartee took place during a two-hour argument as to whether jig-saw puzzles—remember them?—were a game and taxable under the federal revenue laws.

While arguing in favor of taxation, Freund said there were rules for jig-saw puzzles which could be waived in the same manner that the supreme court sometimes waived rules for argument.

"But the court is not a game," Hughes remarked.

"It's a puzzle," replied Freund without hesitating a second.

Church Leader Passes

WILLIAM W. SCOTT.

W. W. SCOTT DIES; LAST RITES TODAY

Church and Fraternal Leader Was Former Justice of the Peace.

LOYALISTS' ARREST TWO TOP GENERALS FOR ANTI-RED PLOT

Pair Face Death on Charges Growing Out of Fall of Malaga.

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 20.—(UP)—Two of the highest military leaders of Loyalist Spain during the first eight months of the civil war, General Jose Asensio and Toribio Martinez Cabrera, were arrested today for "conspiracy against the republic."

They will be tried by a special judge of the supreme court and are liable, under military law, to sentences of death before a firing squad.

The charges against them were based on the Loyalists' loss of the southern seaport of Malaga last February 8 when 6,000 civilians were said to have been slaughtered by the insurgent commander, General Gonzalo Queipo de Liano.

The two men were seized by secret police and are being held in the prison of San Miguel de los Reyes.

FASCISTS ADVANCE TO 5 MILES OF GIRON

HENDAYE, Franco — Spanish Frontiers, (Thursday), October 21. (UP)—Nationalist forces drove to within five miles of Giron, last remaining important Loyalist seaport on the Bay of Biscay, with the capture of the town of Llorde early today.

Dispatches reaching the border said the situation in Giron was growing worse by the hour as 130,000 civilians became panicky with the impending fall of the city.

The villages of Bledo and San Roman also were taken by the insurgents.

GIRON IS IN FLAMES, FLEEING FLIERS SAY

BIARRITZ, France, Oct. 20.—(P) A group of Spanish government fliers who fled from Giron today said the city was in flames and further defense against Generalissimo Francisco Franco's advancing army appeared impossible.

Anarchy was spreading, they said, with Basques and Asturians fighting each other in the streets. Food supplies were nearly exhausted, and only a few militiamen still were ready to hold out against the insurgents, they added.

The government fliers, who said they were the last of Giron's air force, sought refuge in France with their six planes.

Girl of His Heart On Hand To Meet Iron Lung Victim

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Oct. 20. (P)—The strangest tourist who ever came to Florida for the winter arrived today encased in a pulsing metal cylinder that does his breathing for him.

Fred B. Snite Jr., 27-year-old infantile paralysis victim who once had an ambition to fly the Pacific but instead won the distinction of crossing it in a respirator, was brought from Chicago by train, trucked 10 laborious miles to his father's home and ensconced on a sun deck for the season.

There he'll read and play bridge—it's done with mirrors—chat with his friends and see what basis there is for an unflinching hope of recovery he has held since the day he was stricken helpless in China on a world cruise with his family in March, 1936.

Snite gave a sign that he was depressed. His eyes sparkled and his grin never faltered.

His father, operator of a chain of loan offices and a retail furniture store in Chicago, disclosed that his son and Miss Rosemary O'Farrell, a neighbor here, probably would have been married this winter if the illness had not intervened, although there was no formal engagement.

Miss O'Farrell, a pretty blue-eyed brunette in a red linen dress, was on hand with other friends to greet him.

FOREIGN MONEY PLEA REFUSED BY U. S. COURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(P)—Promises of American corporations to pay obligations in foreign currencies cannot be enforced by foreigners in this country's courts, State Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman ruled today in a test case brought by a Swiss concern.

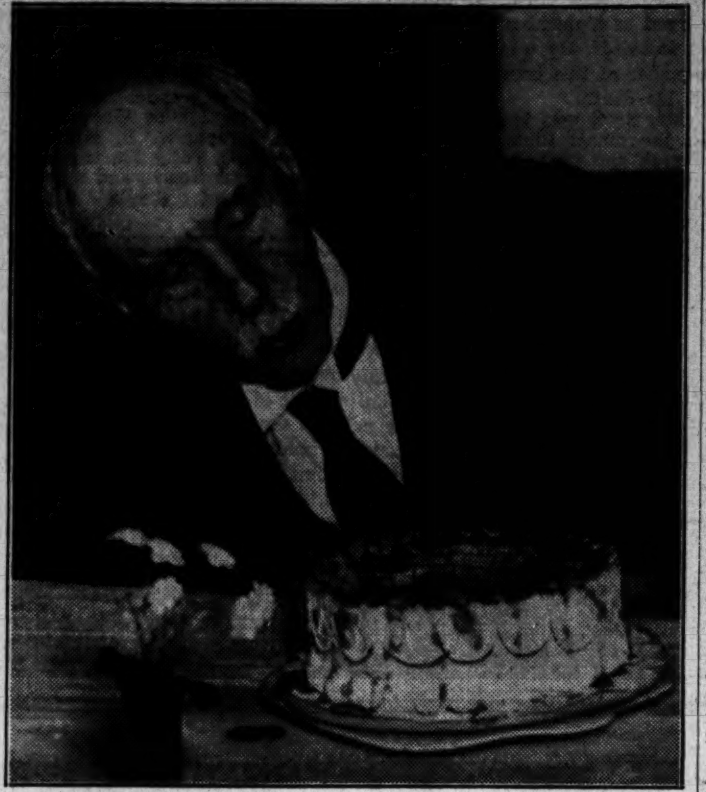

The ruling, which Justice Rosenman said was contrary to the rulings of two federal courts, was in a suit brought by the Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Co. Ltd., against the Lackawanna Steel Co., the Bethlehem Iron Mines Co., and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Its action sought to gain a greater amount of money through having an interest in holds in the defendant's bonds paid in Swiss francs rather than American dollars.

Anne Bradstreet, wife of Governor Bradstreet, was a noted American poet.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, grating up sights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

And Here, Children, Is How to Do It Right

Here's something for the children who fail to blow out five and six candles on a birthday cake. P. F. Connolly, pioneer Atlantan, of 947 White street, S. W., took one good breath, blew out and went 84 flames. "It just takes a little practice," the grandfather said.

GUINEA PIGS PROVE 'ELIXIR' IS DEADLY

Autopsy Reveals Similarity to Deaths Attributed to Sulfanilamide.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 20.—(P)—An autopsy on two guinea pigs which died after treatment with an elixir of sulfanilamide added a new today in an investigation of nine deaths here.

Dr. I. A. Nelson and Dr. H. A. Ruprecht performed the autopsies on the guinea pigs, which died after receiving triple doses of sulfanilamide in a solution of diethylene glycol, and said the condition of the tiny animals' kidney tissues was like that of the tissues of persons who died here after treatment.

The two physicians are members of a Tulsa County Medical Society committee named to determine whether the liquid compound could have been responsible for the nine deaths.

Five deaths in St. Louis have been attributed tentatively to the same form of drug.

DRUG IS LINKED TO ANOTHER ILLNESS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20.—(P)—The physician attending the Rev. J. E. Byrd, Baptist minister from Mt. Olive, Miss., who was stricken ill here last Sunday, said tonight the Rev. Mr. Byrd's illness "apparently was complicated by the use of sulfanilamide."

"I am not ready to say definitely that Mr. Byrd's illness is due to sulfanilamide," the physician declared.

MEMPHIS DEATH
LAID TO ELIXIR
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20.—(P) C. W. Miller, 25, a filling station attendant, died today of what physicians diagnosed as elixir of sulfanilamide poisoning.

An autopsy bore out the earlier diagnosis, physicians said.

The death brought a warning from Dr. N. Wilson Searight, president of the Memphis and Shelby County Medical Society, against purchase of the medicine in any form unless prescribed by a physician.

$3,000 Special Hauling Blonde Back to Tommy

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(P)—Tommy Manville is at it again. He hired a special train tonight to bring Dolly Goering, his blonde and beautiful secretary, back from a vacation at her home in Louisville, Ky.

Tommy proclaimed his latest stunt from his hideaway, Bon Repos, at Mamoroneck, N. Y., after Miss Goering and her sister, Mrs. Louise Hupp, of New York, had started eastward as the only paying passengers on a two-car train.

They were accompanied by a maid and a porter, Manville said. He added that the trip was costing him approximately $3,000.

The Pennsylvania railroad confirmed Tommy's story, including the $3,000 figure. The special was scheduled to arrive here at 5 p. m. tomorrow, said Kenneth Kelly at the railroad's offices.

A dining car, just for Miss Goering, will be added to the train at Columbus, Ohio, in the morning, said Kelly.

Manville explained tonight that he just couldn't do without Dolly. Since she left, the mail has been piling high at Bon Repos, he said, and there's nobody to answer it.

German Throgs Cry For Duke, Duchess

STUTTGART, Germany, Oct. 20.—(P)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor received a welcome here today said by officials to have been equal to the receptions given Chancellor Hitler on his visits.

After the couple, aided by police, had made a difficult entrance into their hotel, thousands stood outside and chanted in unison:

"Dear Duke, Dear Duchess, come and show yourselves." The former King and his wife appeared on the balcony for a few minutes and thanked the "hailing" crowd.

Blaze Is Put Out With Single Puff By 84-Year-Old

"Well, I'm a good blower." No one was more surprised than P. F. Connolly, a pioneer Atlantan, who last night blew out his 84 birthday candles with one good puff at a party given in his honor at the residence, 947 White street, S. W.

His granddaughter, Miss Mary Connolly, arranged the party. She said:

"He used to walk a mile to church every Sunday—up until a few weeks ago when he had a heart attack. He's just getting well from it, but the celebration today has buoyed him considerably."

Years ago, Connolly was a circuit rider in south Georgia.

He attended Emory Academy at Oxford, where he was a classmate of Bishop Warren A. Candler. A brother of the late Dr. E. L. Connolly, Atlanta civic leader and philanthropist, Connolly is an uncle of former Assistant Chief of Police C. P. Connolly and a brother of Mrs. Luther Z. Rosser Sr.

Last night, Mrs. Josie Johns, Mrs. Annie Baldwin, Miss Annelle Wall, Mrs. Q. E. Martin and Louis Connolly were present at the birthday dinner. He received telegrams from friends about the state.

TURNKEY IS ARRESTED IN TRIPLE COLLISION

TWO YOUTHS JAILED IN 3 ROB-RIDE CASES

Confession of Kidnaping
Couple in Grant Park Claimed by Police.

Two youths were arrested by DeKalb police yesterday on charges of robbery by force and the kidnaping of three ride-rob victims Saturday night. Three other persons were held as material witnesses.

Earl Roden, 17, of a Berean avenue address, and B. F. Head, 18, of Birmingham, Ala., were reported by Chief J. T. Dalley as having left Grant park. The men got in the car, forced Howell to drive to Wesley chapel and there put Howell and Miss Barton out after searching them and taking a small amount of money. The car was found Tuesday night.

The taxi driver was forced by two fares to drive out the new Macon highway where they robbed him of $8 while threatening him with a knife. Later Buran jumped from the car and escaped.

Howell, while riding with Miss Anne Barton, of 1641 Maple street, was halted by four armed men as he left Grant park. Bond of $3,000 In Liquor Chase Held Reasonable

A $3,000 bond for a man who "drives a carload of whisky wildly through city streets endangering lives of innocent bystanders" is "very reasonable," Judge E. D. Thomas ruled yesterday.

Fred Daniel, 33, was arrested Sunday night by County Policeman Burton Carroll after he drove his car wildly around downtown streets trying to escape the pursuing officer. Represented by Attorney William R. Bentley, he appeared in Fulton superior court pleading for reduction of $3,000 bond.

Daniel is charged with possessing whisky and speeding. Bentley, who recently figured in the grand jury racket probe, declared that the bond was exorbitant.

When Daniel told how he had fled from Carroll and another "big fat man with him," Judge Thomas held that in view of the apparent disregard for safety of others the $3,000 bond was reasonable.

Solicitor John McClelland cited Daniel's police record.

SHERIFF REQUESTS SUSPECT TO HELP SPOT GIRL'S KILLER

Amateur Criminologist Held on Open Charge in Mystery Slaying.

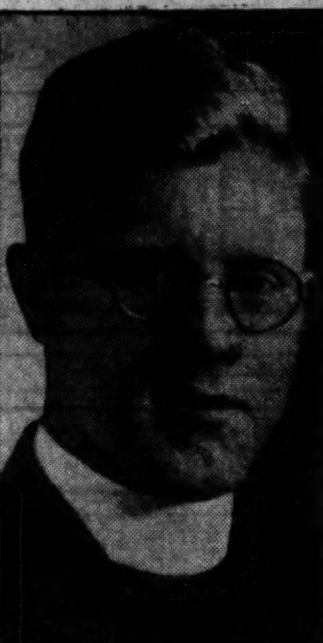

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Paul Butler, attorney for Douglas W. Owen, 35, prominent South Bend psychiatrist, issued a statement today saying his client had been requested by Sheriff Hosinski "to co-operate" in the investigation being conducted concerning the death of 16-year-old Melba Moore.

The girl was fatally shot last week while on a night automobile ride with Adolph Stopper, 20, her fiance, and Charles Walton, 17, Not Under Arrest.

"Dr. Owen was requested by Sheriff Hosinski to co-operate in the investigation being conducted concerning the death of Melba Moore," Butler said. "He came to the sheriff's office and has remained voluntarily. He is not under arrest. Dr. Owen is willing to remain in the sheriff's quarters until such time as the sheriff is no longer in need of his co-operation."

Earlier in the day, Deputy Sheriff Cross had said Dr. Owen was being held "on open charges" pending investigation of his ac-activities the night of October 12 when Miss Moore was shot.

Stopper, after a call at the sheriff's quarters, was quoted by Hosinski as saying he was unable to identify Dr. Owen as the man who fired six shots at his car.

Sheriff's deputies said Dr. Owen is an amateur criminologist, a student flyer, manufactures gun barrels in his laboratory at the St. Joseph Valley sanatorium, which he owns, and is an acquaintance of the Duke of Windsor.

Dr. Owen, they said, met the Duke, then the Prince of Wales, while vacationing in Zurich, Switzerland, several years ago from his graduate studies at Vienna.

SULLIVAN ENTERS COMMISSION RACE

Candidate List Reaches 10 With Announcement; Campaigns Pushed.

Ten candidates were in the race to fill the vacancy on the Fulton county commission yesterday as Leo A. Sullivan, Buckhead district insurance agent, officially qualified with the county ordinary.

More were expected to qualify before the week is over. Deadline for registration is noon Saturday, while the election date is November 9.

A definite split in the Fulton county sheriff's office loomed yesterday, according to political echoes in courthouse corridors. The two courthouse factions were said to be bidding strongly for the solid vote of the sheriff's office.

Division Reported.

The political circle of appointive offices, controlled largely by the county commission, and the other faction consisting of the elective offices, of which the sheriff's office is one, each were reported to have support in the sheriff's office.

Candidates in the race yesterday were campaigning in earnest. In the race so far are Dr. C. W. Childs, C. O. Johnson, Troy G. Chastain, Edgar Craighead, R. T. Dutton, Thomas Croom Partridge, and Nelson T. Spratt, all North Side candidates, and R. H. Everett and T. M. Middlebrooks, both of the South Side.

Clubs Are Formed.

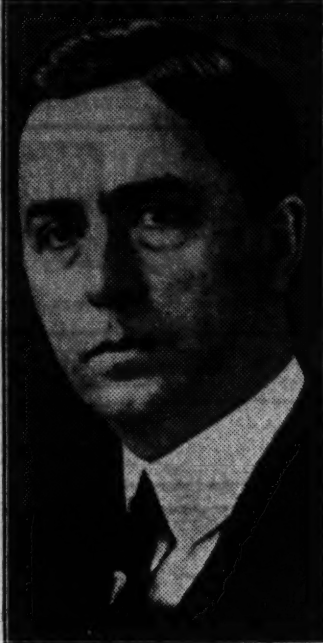

Talked in political circles as the two favorites of the courthouse factions were Chastain and Craighead. Strong backing of the courthouse appointive offices was predicted to prove an advantage for Chastain. Spratt, who backed the courthouse political circle several years ago, was talked as a strong candidate.

Meanwhile, campaigns were getting well under way. A "Chastain-for-County-Commissioner Club" was formed Monday night by Chastain supporters meeting at the E. Rivers school. Friends of C. O. Johnson have organized a similar club promoting Johnson as the man to succeed the late Edwin F. Johnson.

BALANCED BUDGET, SULLIVAN'S PLEDGE

Pledging a balanced budget and equal distribution of county tax funds, Leo A. Sullivan announced his candidacy yesterday for the vacancy on the Fulton county commission. He pointed out that a more "friendly and co-operative attitude toward the city should be exercised in regard to the amount of taxes paid by Atlanta taxpayers and promised reduction of water rates outside city limits. His statement follows:

"I am a candidate to fill the vacancy created by the untimely death of Mr. Edwin F. Johnson.

"(1) I pledge to the people of Fulton county an economical and efficient administration of county affairs.

"(2) Balanced budget—equal consideration and distribution of county tax funds.

"(3) Maintain a friendly and co-operative attitude toward the city assuming a more equitable share of the costs of local city governmental services, especially in view of the fact that owners of city property give the county 85 per cent of its revenue as well as 1-2 mill special tax levy for support of county schools.

"(4) Reduce water rates outside city limits to a more reasonable basis."

RIVERS, SENATORS PROTEST CCC CUT

gram ordered by congress Director Fechner at this time is trying to make adjustments in the allocations to answer the complaints of other states. I will look into the matter thoroughly and if Georgia is being discriminated against the state can count on my protest."

Senator Russell said he had been informed late in June that none of the camps in Georgia were to be abandoned. He added that several weeks ago when he first heard of the removals to the northwest he wrote Director Fechner and received assurance that Georgia had been getting its share and would continue to get its share of the camps.

Georgia has about one-fortieth of the population of the United States and in the division of highway funds, relief money and other federal benefits it has received approximately one-fortieth of the funds given out. It has, however, had between 60 and 70 CCC camps, whereas if the camps were divided as other benefits are split it would have had less than 50.

Senator Russell said that inasmuch as slightly more than 600 camps are to be abandoned, if Georgia loses more than 10 or 12 he will protest vigorously on his arrival in Washington.

Scot at Far East Reports.

Meanwhile army officers in charge of the removal of the enrollees scoffed at reports that the men were being concentrated on the west coast because of the present trouble in the Far East.

"There is nothing secret about the transfer of these boys to the west," Colonel R. H. Dunlop, assistant chief of staff for the corps area, pointed out. "This movement has been taking place all along; in fact, it started when the Civilian Conservation Corps was organized in 1933. As far as I know there is no greater movement now than before the war began between Japan and China."

Officials in Washington said the enrollees are being transferred to work on forest projects, national parks and grazing land in the far west. Those who are being sent into the ninth corps area now are just replacements, a policy which has been followed for two or three years, they said.

Not Military Units.

Colonel Dunlop explained that CCC workers are not trained for military duty and for that reason are not prepared for any military ventures.

"The Civilian Conservation Corps has never had any sort of military drill," he declared. "The government's principal purpose is to take care of these boys."

Although similar movements are being made from the east, Colonel Dunlop said the workers are needed more in the west than they are in the south and east. Washington officials explained that because industrial conditions in the north and east cut enrollments there, additional enrollments were made in Georgia and other states included in the fourth corps area.

According to reports, trainloads of khaki-colored youngsters have been moving from Georgia and southern states in recent weeks toward the Pacific coast, much as the troop trains moved in 1918.

Woman Killed as Wind Jerks Her Out of Auto

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 20.—(AP)—A gust of wind jerked Mrs. Vina Armstrong, 36, from a moving automobile today on the Tamiami Trail, causing head injuries which brought her death within an hour.

Her husband, Larry, said she was pitched to the rocky road shoulder by an unexpected gust which caught a door she was holding partly open.

estrangement in any manner or form.

"I do not wish to discuss it," she said and promptly fled beyond earshot.

With her at the time was a male companion identified as A. Foran, driving an automobile with New York license plates. A reporter accosted them at a Boulder City, Nev., auto court and asked her if it was true she was establishing six weeks' residence to qualify for a Nevada divorce. She said she was just motoring through and had stopped off to see Boulder Dam.

At the Boulder Dam hotel, however, it was announced that Mrs. Stokowski had taken accommodations for a six weeks' stay.

Her departure from Hollywood for Nevada added impetus to the report her husband and Miss Garbo are talking matrimony. The report was unverified, the conductor being somewhere in the east and the Swedish star remaining her unapproachable self.

The report, however, conformed with the best tradition of past Garbo "romances," being timed just in advance of release of her latest picture, "Conquest."

In years past, such romantic talk has involved Rouben Mamoulian, her director, the late John Gilbert, George Brent, and more recently, Robert (Heart Throb) Taylor.

Stokowski, former conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, has appeared in pictures twice in the last year.

MONTAGUE SELECTS JURY FOR HIS TRIAL

Into court today walked elderly Matt Cobb, the white-haired man whom Montague allegedly beat during the holdup of the tavern. Cobb contends he was so severely injured that his hearing was impaired, and today he learned forward—hand cupped to his ear—as he listened to the drone of conversation between counsel tables and the chair where the talesmen sat for examination.

Noonan still was undecided to-night whether Montague would testify. He said it would depend on how the trial testimony runs.

Montague walks freely around Elizabethtown, free under $25,000 bond. He is polite to the townspeople, speaks genially to them when he meets them on the streets and gives no outward sign that he is concerned about what is happening in the courthouse.

the Insurgent and Loyalist ranks, and finding the most feasible means of withdrawing them.

2—Studied by the commission to determine the best method of granting belligerency rights to the Spanish factions.

3—An immediate and equal "token" withdrawal of volunteers from both sides without waiting for the commission's report.

The French delegate, Ambassador Charles Andre Corbin, still pressed his demands today for a "proportionate" withdrawal of volunteers instead of an equal one on the grounds that the Insurgents have at least three times as many mercenary troops as the Loyalists.

But it was authoritatively revealed that France, under British persuasion, was in a mood to arbitrate the point rather than see a complete breakdown on the "hands off Spain" negotiations and be forced to the point of taking "independent freedom of action."

The biggest question remaining in the minds of the nine-power delegates tonight was: What will Russia do?

The Soviet delegate, Ivan Maisky, yesterday turned against Russia's military ally and rejected a French compromise plan calling for "proportionate" withdrawals of volunteers to be followed by settlement of the belligerency question. Russia, staunchest supporter of the Spanish Loyalists, refused to consider belligerency until every volunteer was out of Spain.

HOUSEHOLD MOVERS DRAFT LEGISLATION

Conference Here Seeks Reciprocal Pacts on Licensing Fees.

A committee of the Independent Household Goods Movers' Association of Georgia is preparing a bill to present to the next general assembly to enable Georgia to enter into reciprocal license agreements with other states, it was announced yesterday, following a meeting of the association Tuesday night at a downtown hotel.

The 20 conferees also discussed "fee-grabbing" by states. It was pointed out that W. W. Goodman, director of the motor transport division of South Carolina, has agreed not to charge Georgians for "informal and occasional hauls" into his state if Georgia will agree to give movers of South Carolina the same right.

It was emphasized the agreement would not affect regular carriers who pass through states on established routes. Officials of Louisiana and North Carolina have agreed to reciprocate if the Georgia Public Service Commission will do likewise, it was stated.

ROOSEVELT CALLS FOR MORE REFORMS

has been a caustic critic of many Roosevelt policies.

Glass, seated behind the President praised him. The Virginian was chairman of the house banking committee when congress set up the reserve system.

Mr. Roosevelt was greeted with lively hand-clapping when he appeared on a high balcony above the central rotunda in the glistening new reserve building on Constitution avenue.

Spotlighted between two marble columns by photographers' big electric lamps, he entered on the arm of his son, James, while the army band played "Hail to the Chief." He was introduced by Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the reserve board.

A big American flag was draped behind him, and clustered about were reserve board members, Secretary Morgenthau and Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities Commission.

Throughout Mr. Roosevelt's talk ran a restatement of a general objective, described today in these words:

"To gain for all of our people the greatest attainable measure of economic well being, the largest degree of economic security and stability."

Co-ordination Urged.

In urging co-ordination and perfection of government credit and monetary machinery, the chief executive quoted this statement by President Wilson, now inscribed under Wilson's portrait in the reserve building:

"We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be."

Mr. Roosevelt said this statement applied to the banking system, "which must be constantly alert to changing conditions in order that it may be prepared to adapt itself to the growing and changing needs of our people in their daily life and work."

The government officials who listened to Mr. Roosevelt wound up their daily discussions of stock market trends early in order to be present.

Tension Lessens.

This morning, the Reserve Board's open market committee discussed the stock situation informally. This committee guides reserve policies in buying and selling federal securities.

Throughout Washington, there appeared a general lessening of the tension which developed after the sharp stock market break two days ago.

The Securities Commission held its usual daily meeting after a conference with Ernest Angell, head of the commission's New York office, who was called hurriedly to Washington yesterday.

Angell returned to New York, silent as to the purpose of his visit.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling the germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for many years recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients and now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children.

Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief that you want. VITT, OF NEWARK, NAMED MANAGER OF TRIBE FOR '38

Cleveland President Offers Steve O'Neill Post as Scout.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—(P)—The Cleveland Indians today named Steve O'Neill to replace Steve O'Neill as manager and gave the Newark International league club pilot his first managerial opportunity in major league baseball. Club President Alva Bradley announced O'Neill's appointment under a two-year contract, terms of which were undisclosed. Bradley said O'Neill had been offered a post as a Cleveland scout. The 47-year-old Californian said at his home in Oakland that the appointment climaxed an ambition he cherished ever since his major league playing career ended in 1921. Vitt broke in with Detroit in 1912 and wound up his big time third base chores with the Boston Red Sox in 1921. O'Neill, on the receiving end of some of baseball's most noted batteries, piloted the Indians since August, 1935, when he succeeded Walter Johnson. His replacement was frequently rumored since last summer. Cleveland finished fourth in the last American league campaign. O'Neill said he would not become a Cleveland scout if he could obtain a better offer. Vitt's selection came as a surprise not only to baseball observers generally but to officials of the Newark club, a New York Yankee farm.

LAZZERI IS SEEN AS WRIGLEY AIDE

By CHARLES DUNKLEY. CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(P)—Tony Lazzeri, late of the world's champion New York Yankees, may wind up as a first lieutenant to Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs. Owner Wrigley, talking today of his desire to move Lazzeri into the Cub organization, was indefinite on just which spot the former Yankee would fill in the ranks. He revealed that he never had met Lazzeri, but he has a great admiration for him, because of his desire to go higher in the baseball business. "There are a lot of places in baseball for intelligent, aggressive, and enthusiastic men," Wrigley said, "in addition to those on the playing field. "There are a number of places that he could fit into in our organization. Understand, I never have met him. That is why I cannot do business with him over the long-distance phone. That is why nothing definite can be done until he has time to come to Chicago and talk things over." It is Wrigley's idea that organization is a tremendous need in baseball.

Clemson To Battle Gamecocks Today

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 20.—(P)—Rival coaches said tonight they foresaw an "even" battle tomorrow when South Carolina and Clemson football teams meet at 2 o'clock in their annual state fair classic. Fair, brisk weather was forecast. Rain has never fallen in the 34 games the schools have played since 1896. Ticket sales indicated an overflow crowd of 19,000. Most forecasters conceded Clemson, winner the last three years, a slight edge.

WORMSER HAT STORES
8 Peachtree St. N.E. (at Marquette)
63 Peachtree St. N.E. (at Peachtree)

On Saturday next there are two major football games in our fair southland. Tech meets Auburn in Atlanta and L. S. U. and Vanderbilt play in Nashville.

When day is done there will be just two major teams undefeated and untied. L. S. U. and Vanderbilt both now enjoy that distinction. Maybe there won't be but one. If they should battle to a tie game up there in Nashville, there will be left only Alabama, which plays a nonconference foe and which should win in the manner known as handily.

Despite the fact that Saturday evening may find my ears longer and fuzzier than ever, there seems to be no reason for delaying the announcement this corner believes Tech will defeat Auburn and L. S. U. will win from Vanderbilt. This goes, rain or shine, sink or swim, survive or perish.

The ears very well become that way. Because Auburn won from Mississippi State 33 to 7 and won by using a line attack at the tackles. And they tell me Duke did that to Tech. And Mr. W. A. Alexander hasn't changed his tactics.

Still, that sophomore they call General Wood stayed in there for 60 minutes. He can take it. And he learned a lot. He got more out of that game than he'll get out of ten hours of practice. When they do something fancy to him on Saturday he at least will know he has encountered it before.

It will be quite a ball game. Tech's running game should be a bit more effective this week. But there's no telling. Auburn is a team which will improve each week. If they improve very much after last Saturday, they will be very, very brusque out there.

L. S. U. never puts on a big drive. The team from Old Lou just plugs along, playing percentage football. They figure if they keep playing percentage the opposing team eventually will make a mistake. Three quarters were scoreless last week. They got 13 points in the last quarter to beat Ole Miss. I figure they'll outplug Vanderbilt.

MR. JACK MEAGHER.

This fellow Jack Meagher, who coaches the Auburn Tigers, violates all the rules of the gentle art of making statements. Before almost any game it is almost possible to sit down and write out a brisk statement for each coach.

"Team not at its best—injuries—expect difficult game—always have trouble with this team—odds mean nothing—etc."

And after the game: "We played much better than I expected. I guess the other team must have had an off day. We just clicked today. Etc."

But Jack Meagher violates all the rules. He expects to win every game. He is the confirmed optimist. He always predicts a victory. He depreciates his injuries. He floors the boys a season back when asked if the long trip to San Francisco and back would not handicap the team. "No," he said, "it ought to help them."

This year I visited him at Auburn. "We'll have a good team," he said, "despite the severe losses. It will be a team that will develop. It's an interesting team to coach. I think we'll be a real good team in November."

Well, the man's football team won its opener as expected, then tied Tulane and Villanova, and last week crushed (and the word is applicable) the Mississippi State Maroons.

He's a suave gentleman, is this ex-marine. He thinks he'll win... every time his team takes the field. They don't always do it, but the Auburn alumni can't complain. He gives them action.

MORE RAZZLE-DAZZLE.

A cartoonist doing a cartoon on the Tech football team could show old John Public holding up a bowl and pointing to a dish labeled "Razzle-Dazzle" and asking for more.

The people ate up the Tech contributions to the Saturday afternoon menu. Losing the Duke game did not detract from the team's prestige or from the appreciation of Mr. Alexander and his staff. They showed the public plenty.

There ought to be more of it on Saturday. Both Auburn and Tech go in for a lot of passing. And when both offenses get going on Saturday there ought to be plenty of hysterics and scrambled nerves up in the stands.

WHY, MISTER KELLEY!

In the Satepost, Mr. Larry Kelley, the great Yale end who graduated last spring, is writing his memoirs with the aid of Mr. George Trevor. It is an entertaining series, Mr. Trevor being one of the finest writers in the newspaper business.

In his first article, Mr. Kelley was quoted as saying: "We practically let the Georgia game go by default. Everyone except Bob Train was thinking of Princeton."

Mr. Kelley, who was noted as a wisecracker and a humorist, in addition to being a great football player, was never known for his modesty. And surely he was just a bit careless in that statement. But perhaps it's best to go back to the records. Georgia was the underdog, Yale being a heavy favorite to win.

Georgia won, 14 to 7. Yale scored first, getting a touchdown in the first three minutes. Georgia had a long, hard struggle against a stubborn defense to get two touchdowns. In the final quarter Yale put on a very desperate attack, seeking to tie. It was one of the hardest fought games in the entire Yale-Georgia series. Bob Train, of Savannah, played a magnificent game for Yale. Larry Kelley's name wasn't mentioned.

In the first place, no football player looks good saying he deliberately did not play his best in any one game. And the records show how hard fought this game was. Perhaps if Mr. Kelley had played his best the score would not have been in Georgia's favor. Had it been an unimportant game, Yale might have been a bit careless. But Georgia was trying to make it five straight victories over Yale. And you may bet all the rice in China Yale was trying to prevent it. Still it is an interesting series as Mr. Trevor writes it.

Harriers To Race At Emory Today

Emory harriers will inaugurate the fall cross-country season with a race this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

This event is the first in a series of six races which are scheduled for this year. Three are planned for the fall quarter, with a like number on the spring card.

BILL MIMS, CATE, HUNNICUTT STAR IN GEORGIA DRILL

Work of Reserves Continues Good; Line's Blocking Improves.

Andy Roddenberry Must Rest, Mehre

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 20.—Coach Harry Mehre said tonight Andy Roddenberry "needs a rest." The Macon quarterback was out on his feet for an indefinite time in the Holy Cross game. It is the third time this season that he has been in this condition. His consciousness seems, according to reports, to go and come.

Doctors last week end could find nothing perceptibly wrong with him. Yet Roddenberry could remember only parts of the game Saturday from the half. Mehre said Young and Miller will probably be called on for extra service.

By FELTON GORDON.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 20.—The Georgia football brigade this afternoon put in the hardest afternoon of practice in weeks.

Throwing his best varsity men against the Red Devils on defense, Coach Harry Mehre saw them find difficulty in negotiating gains. The black shirt boys were tackling with a viciousness, tenacity and sureness that was the envy of the best on the field.

FANCY STEPPING.

Vassa Cate and Oliver Hunnicutt showed the boys some fancy stepping.

Hunnicutt got away once on a 60-yard jaunt. Billy Mims, who is performing as understudy to Captain Bill Hartman, unfolded fine offensive evidence.

Mims came in to relieve Hartman when the 200-pound left halfback left the field due to a blow in the abdomen which knocked him breathless. He left the field under his own power and no injury were believed to have resulted from the impact. Hartman exhibited deadly passing and was a consistent game.

The showing of the reserves continued to be a source of satisfaction. They, for a time, outshone the varsity.

MORE SCORES.

As a result the last lineup scored more touchdowns than both the others together. Some eight touchdowns were tallied by the three elevens.

Two More Bears Are Injured.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 20.—(P)—Moor football hopes took another drop today when two more regulars were sent to the sidelines injured in a scrimmage against the freshmen.

The freshmen were using Georgia plays and they scored on one. The Bears' defense was discouraging to Coach Lark Russell, but he appeared satisfied with the improvement in varsity defense.

Rod Tauch and Art Barrow, fullback and guard, were knocked out as the Cubs ran for consistent gains. However, both probably will be able to play against the Bulldogs in Athens on Saturday.

A lengthy session on pass defense also was staged.

Emory Freshmen Tie Seniors, 6 to 6

Emory's fighting Freshmen tied a superior Senior Eleven in the second game of the intramural football season yesterday, 6 to 6. Greatly outplayed throughout the entire first half, the Frosh came back to tie the score in the third quarter when Charlie Barnwell intercepted a Senior pass and raced 60 yards for the score. Barnwell's try for the extra point was blocked by a mass of Senior linemen.

The upperclassmen scored early in the first period. C. A. May intercepted a Frosh pass on his own 45-yard line, then a drive began. And it didn't end until several plays later when May passed to George Copper, Senior end, for a touchdown. May tried an end run for the extra point, but was stopped by Lamar Roberts, rat end.

Score by periods:
Seniors: 0 0 0 6
Frosh: 0 0 6 0
Total: 0 0 6 6
(on pass from May); Freshmen—Barnwell.

Boston Shamrocks Sign Larry Kelley

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—(UP)—Larry Kelley, whose wise-cracking and pass-snaring at Yale made him a gridiron "Dizzy Dean," did an about-face today and became a professional football player, according to George Keneally, general manager and coach of the Boston Shamrocks.

Larry's first professional attempt was made in the College All-Stars vs. New York Giants game at the Polo Grounds on the night of September 8. The football world watched expectantly to see what the "great Kelley" would do against stiff competition. He did virtually nothing.

Palmer-Stone Fives Split With Eatonton

COVINGTON, Ga., Oct. 20.—Palmer-Stone boys' basketball teams opened their 1937-38 season against Eatonton last night and split a double-header.

Eatonton won the first tilt, 39-12, but Palmer-Stone's second team evened the score with a 23-22 victory. The games were played in Eatonton.

Plainsmen's Middleweight Fullback

Dutch Heath, a senior from Birmingham, is the No. 1 fullback of the Auburn eleven. Understudy to Wilton Kilgore, Heath has stepped out as a fine middleweight fullback of 166 pounds. He is on the order of Tech's senior fullback, Harry Appleby, who weighs 162 pounds. They carry a lot of weight, despite their lack of poundage.

Cards, Browns Won't Play At Night

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—(P)—There will be no night baseball at Sportsman's park in 1938, officials of the St. Louis Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals decided today at a meeting.

A statement, signed by President Sam Breadon, of the National League Cardinals, and President Donald L. Barnes of the American League Browns, ended with the optimistic note that "both clubs are hopeful that lights will be erected in 1939 by a joint undertaking."

Cost of lighting the park was estimated at $150,000, but the Browns declined to share the expenses with the Cards, Barnes saying he would rather spend the money for players than for lights.

The Cardinals were unwilling to make the investment alone unless the Browns leased the equipment at a fair rental for nine years. The Browns, however, declined to make such a long-term contract.

July Fox Hounds Hold Front Rating

ALBANY, Ga., Oct. 20.—(P)—July hounds maintained front rank rating at the Georgia Fox Hunters' Association field trials today. They won first honors in the bench show and led the pack in the first cast of the all-age event.

Bench show winners were Tom, owned by J. A. Turner, of Dawson, and Queen, entered by J. K. Hogan, of Macon.

Winners of the morning all-age race were: First, Kate, owned by B. W. Moreland, of Dawson; second, Rags and Sam (tied) both owned by R. L. Owen, Ellaville.

S. C. FROSH WIN.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 20.—(P)—South Carolina's smoothly functioning freshman football machine mustered two touchdowns tonight to defeat Clemson's Cubs in their annual game, 13 to 0.

Tiger Subs Gain With Tech Plays

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 20.—(P)—The Auburn Plainsmen's fourth team using Tech plays, gained to frequently in practice rounds today to suit Coach Meagher.

The entire squad drilled through intensive scrimmages until well after dark with firsts and seconds concentrating on passes. Russell, Stivell, Heath, Antley, McKisick and Buford were standouts.

COLLINS SHOWS FORM ON RETURN TO JACKET TEAM

Red To Play Saturday; Tiger Struggle Is Half-way Mark.

By JACK TROY.

Tech reaches the half-way mark in the schedule Saturday and it may well be the turning point of the season.

What Tech does on Saturday against Auburn may largely determine what kind of a season the Yellow Jackets will have in football.

The Duke game is out of sight and, by now, should be largely out of mind. And a game such as that really doesn't stand as a barrier to a real season.

There are many reasons why it should be a thriller that will rank with the Tech-Duke game. For one thing, both teams will throw a lot of passes.

It should be a wide-open game. Auburn can't depend on power, as could Duke, and so the aerial game should be intensified. It's a case of speed being matched against speed and the team with the best aerial defense being in a rather good position.

Scrimmage of yesterday again was confined to reserves. The most cheering feature was the return of Red Collins, who made a good showing in the rough work. Collins' showing dispelled any doubt of his being able to play Saturday. He displayed a lot of get-up and go.

Collins was injured in Tuesday's scrimmage.

CHANCE TO RECOVER.

Varsity players have been withheld from the scrimmages to give them plenty of chance to recover from the effects of the grueling Duke battle.

Coach Alexander was reluctant to take any chances of injuring regulars.

The only contact work was line scrimmage and open field tackling for the backs. There was more of that yesterday.

There also was considerable work on the blocking dummy. Tech has been concentrating on improved blocking and greater reserve strength.

Work against Auburn plays was confined to dummy scrimmage against the B team.

"Rhythm and Romance," is what the B team linemen call line scrimmage. And they did a lot of it yesterday.

The coaches figure the Duke game took a lot out of the boys and, while they're going light on scrimmage, there's not so much chance of injury in line scrimmage. And the boys need this sort of preparatory work.

Big Glenn Cushing continues to be handicapped by a shoulder injury but is expected to be ready for Saturday.

Cushing is the hard luck member of the Jacket squad. First off, he was operated on for a leg injury in the summer. This delayed his development. He reported overweight. Finally, when the injury was all healed, he injured a shoulder. And when that healed, he injured his other shoulder.

Cushing has great promise as a tackle. And one of these days when he comes up to a game in good physical condition, he is going to be pretty tough to handle. Cushing's lack of development to date primarily goes back to a forced lack of work brought on by injuries. He was a coming tackle at the end of last season.

And it was not until late in the summer that X-ray pictures revealed he had suffered what practically amounted to a broken leg in one of the games.

There had been a separation of the bones and a calcium growth. He underwent an operation and this growth was chipped out.

When Cushing Returns to Top Form Tech's Tackle Situation Will Be Well Taken Care of.

He is practically recovered from a leg injury. And now only George Smith, big end, is on the ailing list. But he's scrimmaging despite an injured ankle.

Tech will go more or less lightly on the heavy work from now until Saturday when another large crowd is expected to see Auburn and Tech put on an aerial circus that may put the professionals to shame.

Tech High, Commercial Will Battle Tonight

SMITHIES SEEK SIXTH VICTORY OF 1937 SEASON

Purples Play Miami Friday Night; Marist Meets Decatur in N.G.I.C.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High and Commercial High will open the week's prep football schedule at 8 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park. It will be a double elimination affair for the loser will be definitely out of the race for both the city and state championships.

Tonight will be ladies' night. All ladies will be admitted for 10 cents.

It's the turning point in the Smithies' schedule, and a victory tonight will give Tech High an inside track for both the city and state titles. Tech High already has won five games with comparative ease and only 12 points have been scored against the Smithies. Following tonight's game, Tech High will have Columbia, Asheville, Columbus Industrial, Boys' High and Wilson High on the schedule.

Tech High beat Commercial 26 to 0 last year, with a running attack and, since both teams have improved particularly in the lines, tonight's game is certain to be a battle of passes.

Bobby Fair, Southern A. A. U. junior 100-yard dash champion, is Tech High's main threat on the long sweeping end runs. Harry Nichols is another flashy Tech High back, liable to get loose almost any time.

Commercial's attack is built around Able Mayfield and Bradford, two fast backs, who literally ran wild in Commercial's victories over Marist, Columbus Industrial and Russell on successive weeks.

Tech High will start with Captain Timberlake, Kerr, Hood, T. Harrison, Williams, Lee and Chidre in the line and Nichols, Fair, Plaster and C. Harrison in the backfield. That combination has started every game for Tech High.

Commercial will start with Goodman, Wallace, Haney, Sheppard, Nash, Bishop and Jackson in the line and Casteel, Mayfield, Chase and Bradford in the backfield.

Prep Teams Drill For Friday Tilt.

Boys' High, G. M. A., Russell, Decatur and Marist held long, rough drills Wednesday in the final preparation for their games Friday night.

Boys' High plays Miami High at 8 o'clock Friday night at Ponce de Leon park, in a revenge game. Last Thanksgiving Day at Miami, the Stingers beat Boys' High, 7 to 0, to check a 33-game Purple winning streak. And are the Purples anxious to avenge that defeat Friday night?

It was Schmar, big right end, who wrecked the Purples' streak and it will be Schmar whom the Purples will center their attack on Friday night. He has been shifted to the backfield and in the game last week with Savannah High, the former end gained more than 200 yards in the game.

The Stingers beat Savannah, 18 to 0.

Marist and Decatur will play an important North Georgia Inter-scholastic Conference game Friday night at Decatur. Both are unbeaten within their own ranks and the game will go a long way toward determining the N. G. I. C. championship, now held jointly by Commercial and Decatur.

In other games Friday, G. M. A. plays Lanier at Macon and Russell plays Cartersville High at East Point.

Williamson Chooses Auburn Over Jackets

Auburn's Tigers will defeat Georgia Tech Saturday by a close score, with the possibility of a tie, according to Mr. Williamson and his scientific football rating system.

The Tigers, by virtue of their smashing defeat of Mississippi State last Saturday, jumped to fifth place among the nation's eleven, according to the ratings.

Georgia's Bulldogs are favored over Mercer, and Oglethorpe rates a slight edge over Erskine, with the possibility of a tie. L. S. U. gets the nod over Vandy, Alabama over George Washington, T. C. U. over Fordham in a close game, and North Carolina over Tulane, with a possibility of a tie, are other selections.

TIGERS DRILLED ON PASS ATTACK FOR VANDY TILT

Observers Believe Moore Plans Aerial Bombardment Saturday.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 20.—(AP)—For the third time in its daily practices, Louisiana State devoted the bulk of its drill to perfecting its passing game for use against Vanderbilt.

This led observers to believe Coach Bernie Moore is planning a real aerial bombardment for the Commodores when the two teams match perfect records in South-eastern conference combat Saturday at Nashville.

After the long passing drill, freshman teams pounded Vanderbilt plays against the varsity in a hard scrimmage that lasted well into dusk.

Vandy Players Don't Fear Tigers.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Vanderbilt's Commodores emerged from a long practice drill today apparently confident of one thing—that they have the wherewithal to whip the L. S. U. Tigers where the Louisiana boys invade Dudley field Saturday.

Coach Ray Morrison, and his lieutenants gave the squad an extended session in pass offense and defense before ordering a rehearsal of the plays the Commodores have been taught this fall.

Headed for the showers, the boys, in no quiet manner, let it be known by chatter and whoops that they were "ready" for whatever might be hurled in their faces on the gridiron Saturday.

MORRIS BROWN'S LINE UNCROSSED

Morris Brown College's undefeated football eleven, which will face Morehouse at Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon, is leading the colored teams of the Southern conference in scoring thus far this season with the best balanced backfield the school ever boasted.

Morehouse, their arch rivals, are preparing carefully to meet the best team they have faced this fall. Their record to date stands at one conference win and they are hoping to add Morris Brown to their list of victims.

The coaching staff at Morehouse is polishing their offense for this encounter. Several backfield men that have showed promise throughout the early practice sessions will be given a chance in this game, according to information of those close to the athletic setup at the Morris Tigers camp.

The strong line of the Wolves, known as the "Seven Pillars of Steel," has proven to be airtight, but the coaches at Morehouse believe their ball-carriers can penetrate the heretofore impregnable defense.

Many fans from all parts of the state and adjoining territory have made reservations to see this game. Morris Brown will be celebrating its annual home-coming.

ATLANTA HORSES WIN TOP HONORS

Atlanta horses owned by Tuxedo Hunt Club members captured top honors in the Selma, Ala., horse show yesterday.

Young Billy Black, 10-year-old brother of the golf stars, Charlie and Dave, riding Bold Venture, won first place in the gentlemen's horsemanship event. Black also handled Bold Venture in winning the model class.

Crystal King, ridden by Mrs. C. P. Duncan, won first place in the ladies' class, while Big Parade, owned by Charles H. Black, and ridden by Maddux Whitely, won the reserved championship.

Emaline, ridden by R. W. Snow, won first place in the fine harness class. John K. O'Leary's Step-in-Fetchit took first prize in the plantation walking class.

The horses of the Tuxedo Hunt Club are entered in a show at Marianna, Fla., tonight, President James D. Henry announced last night.

FLOODS WASH OUT VIRGINIA BRIDGES

Eastern Half of Nation Doused by Rains.

By the Associated Press.

Heavy flood damage was reported yesterday in the wake of dousing rains across the eastern half of the nation.

Some sources estimated the losses, concentrated in southern Virginia and northern North Carolina, might reach several million dollars.

Swollen streams washed out bridges and lowland crops and inundated portions of several Virginia communities.

One drowning was recorded near Buckhorn, Va.

A 24-hour downpour sent mountain streams on a rampage in North Carolina. Lowlanders in a few isolated places were forced to flee.

More than two inches of rain fell at Madison, Wis., and Marquette, Mich., and more than an inch at Atlantic City, N. J., New York, Washington, Green Bay, Wis., Escanaba, Mich., and Davenport and Dubuque, Iowa.

500 Speakers of 'Unknown Tongue' To Hold Church Conference Here

Not Two Years Old in Atlanta, Assembly of God Denomination To Be Host to District From October 26 Through 28.

There will be a convention, but no smoking... a service at which people will be "healed"... a time when the noise of strange tongues will rend the air... a time of joy for members of the Assembly of God in Atlanta.

Just two years ago there were no churches of the Assembly of God here. Now there are two, one tabernacle at 301 Capitol avenue, S. W., and another in West End.

A few years ago there were no Assembly of God churches in the state of Georgia. Now there are more than 50.

Byrd To Be Host.

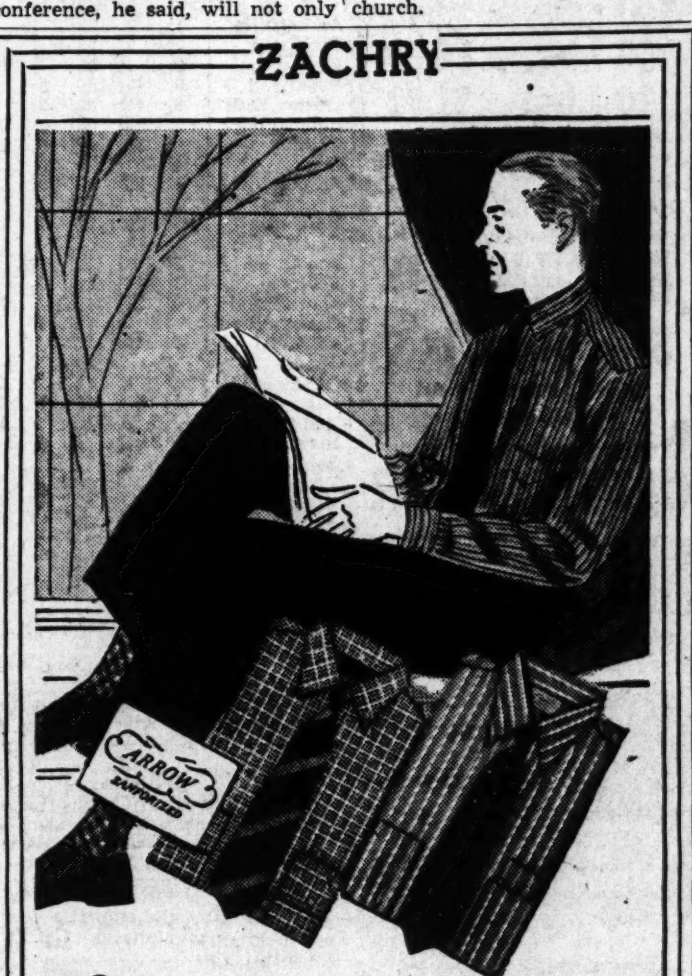

The Rev. Ralph Byrd, pastor of the church on Capitol avenue, yesterday announced that he will be host pastor to the Georgia-South Carolina district conference which will convene here on October 26 through 28. He expects 500 pastors and delegates.

At the convention, addresses will be heard by Ernest S. Williams, national general superintendent of the Assembly of God, and Blanche Appleby, who has just returned from 26 years of missionary work in China.

"We will feature home and foreign missionary work at the conference," the Rev. Mr. Byrd said. "What does he mean by home and foreign missionary work?"

Renew Missionary Work.

He means that delegates to the conference, he said, will not only

When Joe, 8, Hears Call of Road, Mangled Foot Doesn't Phase Him

Youthful Traveler Suffers Mishap on First Attempt at Hopping a Freight, But Almost Recovered, He's Immediately Going Again.

Joe Robinson Jr. is one of Georgia's experienced travelers—and probably the youngest.

It was hot and the sun beat down on the small house of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Robinson, in Homer, Ga., when the urge first came six months ago to Joe Jr., to travel. He walked into the house, laconically told his mother, "Well, I'm going."

Probably not paying any special attention, she replied, "Go ahead. Take a vacation."

The words were welcome to Joe, who was only eight years old and no more afraid of being alone than a hermit. He struck out.

Boarding a freight train he headed for Atlanta and the home of his grandmother. Instead of getting a warm welcome, he was taken to Grady hospital.

For while he was attempting to alight from the train, he slipped. And his right foot was mangled, the toes being cut off. He stayed in the hospital a month, then was taken to the home of his grandmother on Cooper street.

Yesterday, the urge to return home to Homer again came to Joe.

He hobbled in—for Joe's foot is still sore, although it's almost healed—and announced to his grandmother that he was going.

"All right, but be careful," she replied.

He headed for Union station. There he presented his plight to several waiting travelers. In a non-descript outfit, he touched the hearts of two youths, Ray Cannon, 21, and Sam Hardeman, 17.

Gels Train Ticket.

After getting 50 cents from other persons, Joe was taken into custody by the two young men. They bought his breakfast and dinner, put him on his train—with a ticket that took him only as far as Lula, 12 miles short of his destination.

However, although he faced the dreary task of walking a dozen miles, he wasn't phased. Not Joe.

"I'm going to pick cotton when I go home," he said laconically. "I hope they don't make me go back to school."

"I have an uncle named Homer. He was such a good guy they named the town after him. No, I'm not afraid."

He has satisfactorily completed at least one year in high school or its equivalent, and he is of good moral character and in excellent physical condition.

MARINE ASPIRANTS TO BE INTERVIEWED

Examinations Are Announced for Next Monday.

Young men in Atlanta who desire to enlist in the marine corps will be interviewed and examined next Monday, Major J. M. Tildesley, officer in charge of recruiting headquarters in Macon, announced yesterday.

Other recruiting trips will be made to Columbus on October 28; Griffin, October 27, and Tifton, October 28. Examinations will be held in the postoffice of each of these cities.

Applicants who qualify will be transported to Macon for enlistment, and those enlisted will be transferred to the marine barracks, Parris Island, S. C., for training.

For enlistment applicants must be white, single, 18 to 28 years of age, 64 to 74 inches in height, must have satisfactorily completed at least one year in high school or its equivalent, and be of good moral character and in excellent physical condition.

GREEN FIGHT SHIFT

Estate Squabble Will Go to New York.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The four states squabbling over approximately $8,000,000 of the fortune of Colonel Edward H. R. Green left when he died last year will resume their legal quarrel in New York January 10, 1938.

The last witness in the Texas hearing to establish Colonel Green's domicile, testifying today at Terrell, added one more item to the mass of reminiscence concerning the eccentric millionaire son of Hetty Green.

Colonel Green, 84-year-old Mrs. R. Jarvis testified, paid her $5 a month for three years as rental on a room he never used.

ordinarily have served until January 1, 1939, under the office he held. As senator from the 53d district, his term merely fills out the unexpired part of the term he previously held.

The campaign for the new senate position lacked colorful issues to inspire much public interest. In some quarters it was termed the "forgotten election" and registered one of the smallest totals on record.

In the city third ward, precinct B, only three votes were cast, two for Millican and one for Butler. Only one more vote was cast in Union district, all four going to Millican.

4th Ward Precinct Leads

The biggest vote was cast in the fourth ward, precinct D, where Millican got 189 votes, Butler 80, Brackett 37, Shettlesworth 13 and Threlkel 7.

Millican led practically all the way, losing only eight of the county's 64 precincts. Butler carried the Old First, Cooks, Center Hill,

No Welcome in City For Florida 'Slots'

Atlanta will be no refuge for Florida's outlawed slot machines, Superintendent of Detectives J. A. McKibben and Detective Lieutenant R. P. Burnette warned last night.

The detective officers said their department had been instructed to confiscate all slot machines they find. It had been reported owners of the outlawed Florida machines were moving some of them to Atlanta.

Third ward A, F, and G, and Double Branch precincts. Brackett led in Little River.

The voting totals were marked by numerous 1 and zeros on the tally sheet.

For a long time it appeared in Atlanta that no votes had been cast in Goodes district where 18 were registered to vote. Last night a report finally came in that 10 votes, all for Millican, had been polled there.

Senator-Elect Millican was the only candidate polling votes in every precinct and in no instance did he receive less than 2 votes, winning one precinct with that number.

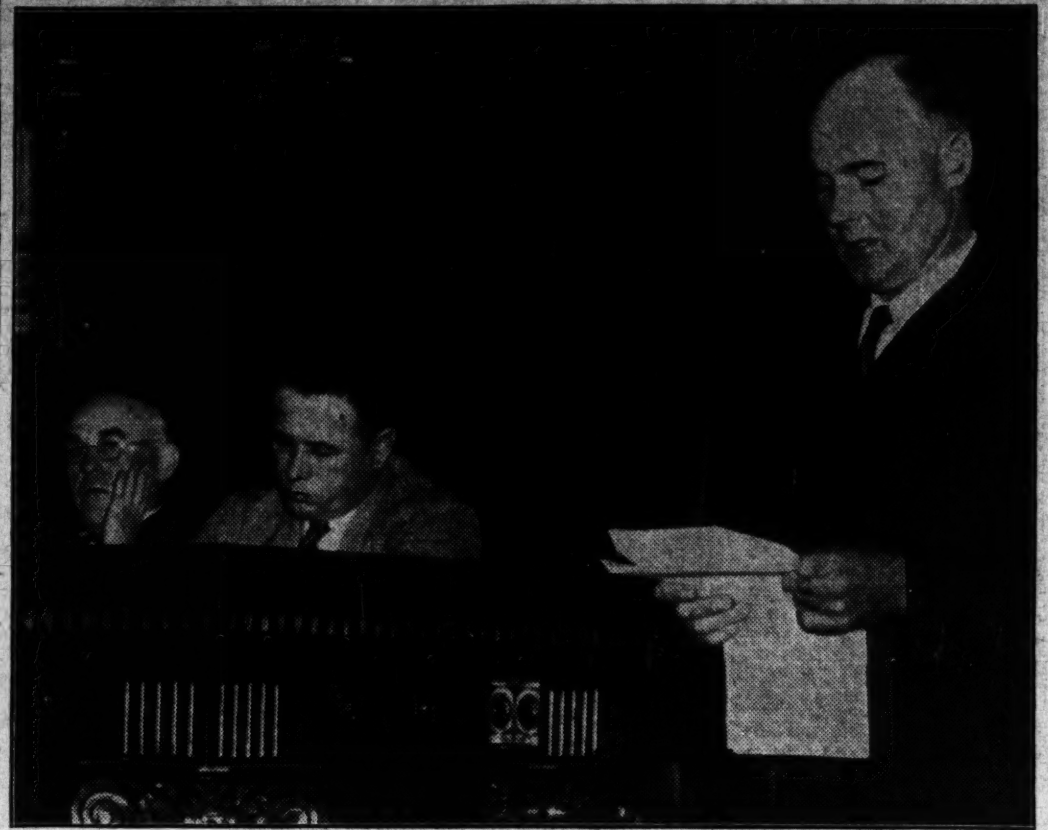

Ballots were cast for all candidates in only 23 precincts. Only seven rural precincts gave a vote to each candidate.

2-WEEK REVIVAL NETS CHURCH 120 MEMBERS

A two weeks' revival at the Northside Park Baptist church resulted in 120 new members joining the church, it was announced yesterday.

The revival, which closed Sunday night, was conducted by the Rev. Herbert Morgan, of Chattanooga, who was brought here by the Rev. W. S. Priddy, pastor of the church here. Ninety-two persons will be baptized as a result of the meeting, it was said.

GEORGIA'S FARMERS ASK CROP CONTROL

repealed by congress nearly two years ago after the supreme court had held certain phases of it unconstitutional.

Although more than a score of persons addressed the committee at the hearing which was conducted by Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts, what was said to be the program of the farmers of Georgia generally was presented by Cully Cobb, of Atlanta, until recently head of the cotton section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Robert Stiles, a Barlow county farmer, who is president of the newly organized United Farmers of Georgia, a unit which Stiles said is daily swelling in membership.

This program provides the following:

Conservation of the soil. Strict production control. Administration by local officials.

Reallocation of acreage so that small farmers will be benefited as well as the owners of large tracts of land.

Use of funds from import duties to help pay the cost of the program.

It proved to be the contention of Cobb and Stiles that as long as the high American tariff wall remains funds collected as a result of the tariff should be allocated to help pay the cost of the control program.

CARRY YOUR ALKALIZER WITH YOU

IF OVER-EATING CAUSES ACID INDIGESTION—

—HERE'S THE SENSIBLE THING TO DO

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a tin for your pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomachs are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

It took 98 years to make
as good as it is today!

YOU CAN'T name one of the really great drinks of the world that is a newcomer. Great drinks aren't invented like a mechanical gadget. They can't be copied like a hat. More like a man, they must develop character—they must grow great with the years.

Ninety-eight years have come and gone since Peter Ballantine began brewing his Ale in Newark. He established certain standards to which the experience and skill of almost a century have been added. You find all this in every glass of Ballantine's today.

Great drinks aren't invented... can't be copied. They grow great with the years. You'll know what we mean every time you see the 3 rings and say, "MAKE MINE BALLANTINE'S!" Made by America's Oldest Brewery.

Dr. and Mrs. English Entertained By Celebrities Living in Mexico

By Sally Forth.

QUITE an interesting journey has just been the experience of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas English, who left Atlanta in September for New Orleans to sail from that port a day later for that interesting republic of Mexico, where, after a few hours at Vera Cruz, they went directly to Mexico City and made their headquarters there throughout their three weeks' jaunt. They enjoyed many "red-letter" days during this third trip of theirs into the Caribbean region, and tell with great pleasure of having had tea at the home of the military attaché, Lieutenant Colonel Herbert Marshburn, and Mrs. Marshburn, and of having been the luncheon guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Josephus Daniels at the American embassy.

September 16 in Mexico is Independence Day, corresponding to our United States' Fourth of July, and it was the good fortune of Dr. and Mrs. English to witness the prodigious celebration parade reviewed by the President and later be on hand to watch him dedicate a beautiful independence monument. Imagine the amazement of Sally's travelers to find "Sunrise," a play soon to open in New York, with the actor Soto as star and manager, was just leaving Mexico City after having had quite a long run there. Isn't that a record for this far-away city to be that much ahead of the play center of our country? From the middle of October through the first of April is reputed to be the height of the season for bullfighting, a sport that one always thinks of in connection with this Spanish-speaking country, but Dr. and Mrs. English report that the people put on a visitors' bullfight, not quite so exciting as during the regular season, but which attracts many hundreds of tourists and upholds their conceptions of Mexico.

WE HAD been wondering why Ed Peeples was looking a little woe these days and have only just discovered that he has been using his lunch period to play the three of his pieces that will be used in "Excursion" so that Walter Sheets could do the orchestration for them. Jane Clark, contralto singer, will introduce his piece, "No Company," and his other beautiful compositions to be played are "Table by the Band" and "When Love Whispers Music to You." Ed, as you know, has shown great promise as a coming playwright ever since he wrote the words and music and directed the play, "Wharf Street," that made such a hit when produced by the Marionette Club of Georgia Tech three years ago.

Martha DeGolian, another talented Atlantan, will hold one of the leading roles in this play when it opens at the Atlanta theater this evening.

SAID the cordial lady to one of last year's debts at a recent party, "My dear, from whom do you get your lovely blond looks—your mother or your father?" Replied the deb, "I really wouldn't know—my mother is a decided brunette and dad's hair has been white ever since I've known him."

Gridiron Dinner Will Be Given.

Atlanta Woman's Press Club selected November 30 as the date for their gridiron dinner, at the meeting of the club held Tuesday when Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter and Mrs. Ruth Campbell were hostesses at the meeting held at the former's home on Piedmont avenue.

Mrs. Pauline Branyon, the president, presided over the business session. Miss Grace Hartley, of the Atlanta Journal; Misses Robyn Peeples and Maxine Land, of The Atlanta Constitution, were announced as new members.

The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. George B. Hinman and Miss Dorothy Hinman.

Mrs. John R. Marsh entertains club members at the November meeting prior to the gridiron dinner.

Rose Garden Club.

Rose Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Henry Smith on Woodward way with Mrs. Bartow Morgan as co-hostess. An appeal for the Community Chest was made to the club by Mrs. George Rowbotham. The club unanimously made this appropriation.

A letter from Mrs. Donald Hastings was read to members asking the club to join with other garden clubs in requesting the state to appoint a landscape architect to be in charge of the beautification of the state highways. This suggestion met with the approval of the club and the corresponding secretary was instructed to write Governor Rivers.

The flower show chairman, Mrs. Thomas H. Scott, requested members to begin plans for the spring flower show while doing their fall planting and plant things that would bloom at that time so that the club will have a splendid collection of plants to exhibit in the show.

Eugene Heath spoke on background shrub planting and the proper method of pruning shrubs. He also discussed with the club plans which are under way for a probable botanical garden in Fulton county. Luncheon was served.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

WILL POWER AND CONSTIPATION.

From experience and observation over many years I can consistently maintain that anyone who is habitually constipated and a slave to physic, enema or other unnatural interference, can, if he will, win freedom from the rest of his life.

Will power means strength of mind, determination.

The secret of the will power necessary to enable the victim of the physical habit to break the habit is a knowledge of physiology. Elementary physiology, simple enough for any child to understand. Yet it is hard to teach the average layman this lesson because he knows so many things which ain't so. He has been a lifelong student of almanacs, testimonials and quack doctor bait, and hence he is pretty thoroughly imbued with the idea of "auto-intoxication" or "poisoning of the system by absorption of toxic waste from the colon." He has this morbid fancy so fixed in his imagination that the truth scarcely makes any impression. The poor goof actually believes health, happiness and life itself depend on the daily use of one or another article to "keep the bowels open."

Very few, even of college educated Americans, think it necessary to take something or do something daily to keep the respiration or the circulation active. The nostrum mongers and quacks of Yankeland have not found it advisable to teach the gullible public that such regulators are essential.

The function of the digestive tract including the intestines is as completely under control of the autonomic or "sympathetic" (unconscious, involuntary) nervous system as is the respiration and the circulation. Any textbook of physiology explains this, but somehow the fact does not stand out in testimonials, circulars, pamphlets and other bait.

Food, medicine, massage, exercise, constant watching or introspection, and various ways and means of irritating or forcing action are all as important or unimportant in the control or regulation of the action of the lungs or the heart as they are in the control or regulation of the action of the bowel.

The taking of a laxative or cathartic seems a simple, harmless procedure in any circumstance—to the wiseacre; yet it is the straw that turns the scale against recovery in many cases of acute appendicitis, for example. But the voice of the honest doctor warning people about this and other injurious effects of physics is drowned out by the clamor of the nostrum mongers and charlatans crying their wares, and the great Yankee public spends $20,000,000 annually for laxatives under the gleeful belief that this shrewd trick keeps $20,000,000 out of the pockets of the rascally doctors.

Take a hundred or a thousand persons as they come, all subject to chronic or habitual constipation and addicted to this or that diet, enema or aperient medicine. Deprive them absolutely of their favorite "aid" to the bowel action for three months, and I'll wager 25 to 1 in each case that by the end of that time the individual will require no such laxative. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

Successful Southern Lawns Begin With Hastings' Seeds

HAVING a neat, freshly attractive lawn throughout the entire year has long been an acute problem, particularly here in the South where soil and climatic conditions are not normally as conducive to good results as in some other parts of the country.

We in the South can have fine lawns, and can have them winter and summer, if we but take the trouble to provide for their needs.

FOOD AND MOISTURE

The controlling factor in good growth of grass anywhere is having a liberal supply of well balanced food and the moisture necessary for the plants to absorb the solution the food makes in the soil.

The reason quite a few of our lawn areas are so lacking in ability to grow a good lawn is because there is not enough humus in the soil to hold the plant food and the necessary moisture to sustain growth over the entire year's period.

HUMUS

Humus is available in a number of different forms—from a growing crop turned into the soil; bringing in woods soil; adding sterilized manures; adding peat moss.

Cowpeas grown and turned under in late summer add considerable humus and, supplemented with the more concentrated sheep manure, forms the basis for a good lawn soil.

Where time is an element to be considered it is not possible to wait a full season on the growth of a crop, so for quick results and effective as well, a combination of sheep manure and peat moss applied at the rate of 100 pounds of sheep manure and one to two bales of peat moss for each thousand square feet of lawn area proves excellent, particularly when spaded well into the upper six inches, the feeding area of the soil. This highly absorbent material acts as a sponge, holding moisture for dry periods, and in the moisture is held the food elements in solution ready for use by the grass roots at all times.

SOIL PREPARATION

Thorough spading or plowing to a depth of twelve inches and pulverizing to eliminate clods is essential to a good seed bed. At this point we add our humus, lime, and fertilizer, mixing it evenly in the upper six inches and raking off smoothly and eliminating sticks, clods, and stones that interfere with uniform growth.

SEEDING

Five to ten pounds of good grass seed mixtures usually are ample to seed one thousand square feet of new lawn area, many successful lawn makers using the larger quantity to insure uniformity and a quicker show of results.

By dividing the amount of seed to be used into two equal parts we may sow half north and south across the area and the other half in an east and west direction and thus avoid skips.

REMAKING OLD LAWNS

In most cases where grass has worn down very thin with many skips it is advisable to start from the beginning as with a new lawn. But when there is a fair stand with only a few skips then a heavy dressing of Sheep manure, Peat moss and Vigoro scratched lightly into the sod and skips (reseeding skips and thin places) will invigorate the grass into new life and lustre for the season.

TIME TO PLANT

In the South our finest lawns are started during the cooler months of the year and when there is no danger of freezing while the young grass is becoming established. October, November and March are considered ideal times in the upper half of the cotton belt and from October until March farther South, though preparatory work may be done at any other time that is convenient.

GRASSES TO USE

Hastings' Evergreen Lawn Grass for sunny locations, and Hastings' Shady Lawn Grass for more shaded locations, will give the finest year 'round lawns that it is possible to have. Both mixtures are heavy feeders and require abundant food and moisture, always available. They are made of only the highest grades of suitable varieties for the finest growth and appearance and will do credit to any home, large or small.

Either mixture contains just the correct blend to fit almost every condition that is encountered in lawn making here in the South. They will grow into a thick, heavy turf that surely will be the pride of the entire neighborhood, adding materially to the value of the home—giving it such a well dressed, well groomed appearance that excites pleasant comment. They have been developed by Hastings' own grass experts through intimate knowledge of Southern lawn problems covering almost fifty years of experience. Our secret formula remains the same regardless of price of ingredients.

Bermuda grass is the standby for very sunny locations in all sections of the South and thrives on light or heavy soils and withstands adversity but responds to good treatment. It is strictly a summer lawn as it turns brown with frost, but fortunately a seeding now of Hastings' Wintergreen Rye Grass (ten pounds for each thousand square feet), worked well into the Bermuda sod will quickly sprout and give a brilliant green display through the winter until spring brings the Bermuda into growth again.

Debutantes Stage Fashion Show Amid Brilliant Modern Setting

In a modern setting of aquamarine blue and white the debutantes of 1937-38 paraded their grace and beauty for sweet charity's sake last evening in a fashion revue held at the Piedmont Driving Club. Modeling smart street, sports, cocktail, dinner and evening clothes, the debutantes descended circular stairs at the back of the stage, erected for the occasion, and walked down the long runway that extended the length of the ballroom. Apple green and surprise pink lights were thrown upon the models when they appeared in view of the admiring audience and brilliant footlights illuminated the colorful setting.

Miss Katherine Calhoun modeled a stunning cocktail dress fashioned of black velvet with a bodice made of shimmering black sequins. Her velvet toque hat was trimmed with a fetching filmy black lace veil.

Soft, black sheer wool fashioned the aperitif dress worn by Miss Nancy Moody. A removable bolero jacket trimmed with silver lame and rhinestones was a feature of the lovely gown. A black velvet hat trimmed with a rhinestone clip topped the striking costume.

Miss Margaret Preacher selected an afternoon gown for the fashion show. Created of champagne metal cloth the becoming gown was trimmed with gold sequins and made with jacket boasting long sleeves. A brown velvet off-the-face hat and other brown accessories completed Miss Preacher's costume.

Miss Caroline Cooper chose a tailored dinner dress made of two-toned iridescent taffeta. Iridescent sequins trimmed the close-fitting bodice and long sleeves.

that worn by Miss Ethel Erwin. Fashioned of wine and silver metal cloth, the skirt of the modish dress was formed of narrow knife-size plaits. A wine-red zipper fastened the front bodice of the becoming costume.

Miss Aycock's Dress. Miss Helen Aycock's black taffeta gown featured a wide princess girdle formed of crimson, royal blue and bright green shades. She wore evening sandals in shades that matched the gown's girdle.

Miss Alice Armstrong's brunet beauty was accentuated by her gown of black crepe made with a bolero jacket and trimmed with narrow bands of gold braid.

Miss Anne Coppedge modeled a taffeta gown made of brown net posed over matching taffeta and trimmed with gold sequins.

Miss Kathryn Barnwell was attired in an evening gown of white satin lacquered in a flower design of silver, rose and jade green shades.

Miss Mary Morris chose an evening gown fashioned of black and gold metallic cloth with which she wore gold-colored sandals and a becoming gold hair ornament.

Brown-eyed Miss Helen Roberts wore a stunning evening dress which was a combination of scarlet, jade green and plum shades of velvet.

Miss Tommie Quin's black velvet evening dress was worn with a long fitted black velvet coat trimmed with white ermine collar.

Miss Sarah Lewis modeled an evening coat made of silver lame that reached to a floor length.

Miss Ida Akers, president of the current season's Debutante Club, was a petite figure garbed in an electric blue corded silk evening dress. Single dark red velvet tulips with green velvet stems were appliqued on the short puffed sleeves and the bottom of the floor-length skirt. A regal black velvet evening dress trimmed with gold lame collar and cuffs was worn by Miss Bebe Young.

A black lace gown trimmed with a narrow gold leather belt and worn by Miss Anne Atkins, featured the Spanish style with its wide skirt and close-fitting bodice. Miss Laura Hill's stately beauty was emphasized by her black satin evening dress. A small gold leaf design was introduced on the black satin background and folds of gold lame formed the shoulders of the becoming bodice.

Lustrous white satin fashioned the evening attire worn by Miss Roline Adair, the skirt of the beautiful dress being formed of accordion plaits.

Miss Dorothy Sanford wore a stunning creation of white panne velvet made along Grecian lines.

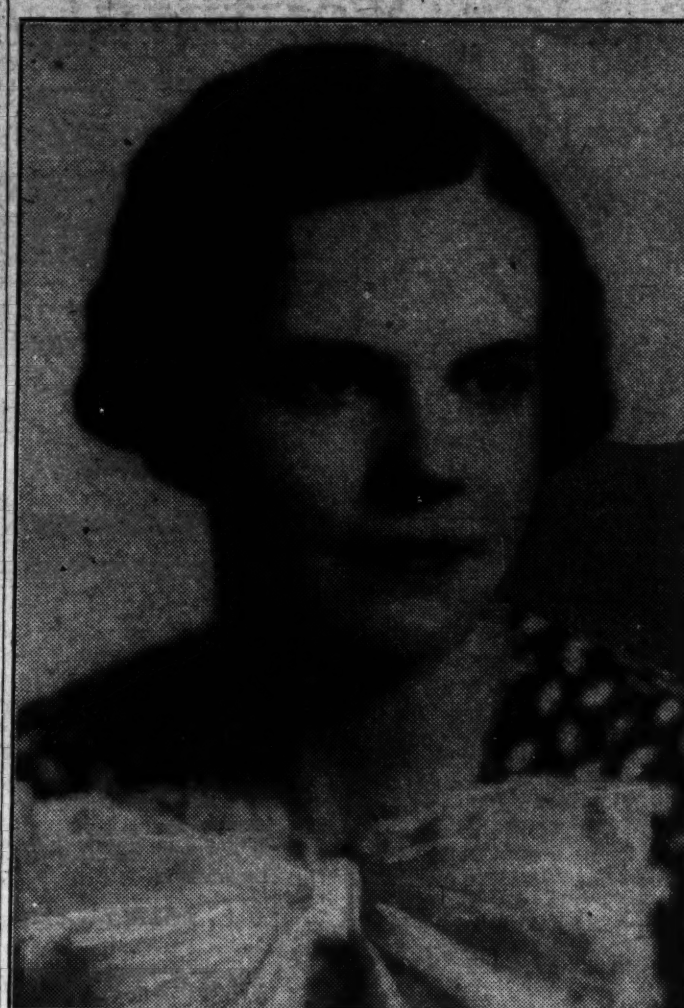

Miss Flora Wright's black satin evening dress was trimmed with two large pink satin ribbon roses at the front neckline. Pink and black satin loops formed the sleeves to the lovely dress and the same shades of satin formed the graceful flounce to the train-length skirt.

Sports Attire. Miss Emmakate Vretman was the first of the group modeling smart sports attire to appear on the broad stage. She wore a three-piece wool ensemble made with a short jacket and worn with a wide brown leather belt. She wore a top coat featuring the modish padded shoulders and trimmed with a cross fox fur collar. A brown velvet hat and brown accessories completed her costume.

The new Desire cloth fashioned the dressy sports coat modeled by Miss Amelia Hewlett. A natural Lynx collar trimmed the coat that was worn with brown suede belt and hat.

Miss Wylene Upshaw's tailored outfit featured a skirt of hunter's green suede worn with a Norfolk jacket of matching suede. Her chic hat was also of the same shade of suede, and she wore dark green suede shoes. Miss Marianna Adair's tailored costume was made of slate blue wool trimmed with gray caracul, cuffs and collar. She wore a gray felt hat and carried a smart gray satchel bag.

Climaxing the brilliant fashion show was the appearance of Miss Isabel Boykin modeling a handsome wedding gown fashioned of white satin and worn with a filmy white tulle veil held to her blond hair by tiny white ostrich tips. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies. Misses Rachel Burton, Anne Brumby and Julia Hoyt enacted the roles of bridesmaids wearing exquisite gowns of deep ivory silk moire trimmed with rust-colored velvet ribbon. They carried bouquets of bronze and deep gold-colored chrysanthemums tied with rust-colored velvet ribbon.

Proceeds from the fashion show will be used for the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery, a branch of the Sheltering Arms, which debutantes of this season have selected for their charity.

Barbara Bell Styles

AFTERNOON FROCK FOR THE LARGER WOMAN.

Women who are not so slender will find this a very becoming dress. The surplice closing finished with full revers at both sides is one which takes inches from the silhouette—this soft bodice draping softens figure curves and makes the waistline and hips look smaller. The sleeves are finished with a trim cuff of extra width—a detail that gives the arm a slimming, tapered look. Note the slanting armhole cut high on the shoulder to give a smooth and rounded shoulder line.

The new alpaca and deep colored silk crepes are a lovely choice for a dress like this—taking well to the soft draping of the bodice. The sew chart that comes with each pattern gives complete and detailed information on how to make this dress.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1399-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. If never-collar is preferred in contrasting fabric, 7-8 yard is required. Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell fall and winter pattern book.

Gloria Swanson Attributes Her Youthful Appearance to Relaxation

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Tuesday.—As I look over my day yesterday, I seem chiefly to have been going to and from speeches during the afternoon and evening. The people who stand out in my mind are the very kindly taxi drivers. Two of them were very nice and told me their wives would be much interested when they told them they had a chance to talk to me.

One driver told me something which greatly impressed me. He said he felt the average man today could talk more intelligently about his government than ever before and that for the first time average men felt a real sense of responsibility to keep in touch with what was going on. If that is a general feeling, it augurs well for us in the future.

My luncheon meeting today was very long. They were kind enough to present me with a plaque which will be placed in one of the rooms in a new building which the Women's League for Palestine is erecting. The plaque commemorates the establishment of a course in vocational guidance and I feel deeply honored that such a good piece of work will in some way be connected with me.

This is the season of the year when the community mobilization for human needs takes place. It is the women's function in this group to interpret to the community the achievements of the various charitable and social organizations supported by the Community Chests.

It seems unnecessary to tell people about the functions of organizations which they can see in operation, but so many people take little or no interest in social organizations that it is a good thing each year for the women to go to work and gather the facts and make them known. I hope that, as usual, the mobilization will be very successful and that the funds collected will meet all the needs of the various committees.

A rather touching card came up this evening at the end of my speech. I was attempting to answer questions which ran from the proper pronunciation of my name to, "What do you consider an adequate standard of living in New York city?" A slip of paper was handed me which said in substance that the writer had grown up and lived in an environment of poverty in a big city, but that she thought I knew more about certain conditions than even she did and that I had taught her a great deal.

It was a great compliment, for it meant that I had succeeded in making real to her conditions in other parts of the country. It taught me that if you have seen a thing at first hand and felt it, you are able to paint it so that it seems truthful to somebody else. I have just been presented with a most gorgeous new lamp for my apartment. It gives a great deal more light than I ever had before. I am not sure, however, that it is wise to shed so much light over some of my ancient shabbiness, but it is going to be much better for our eyes and my guests will be able to see what they are eating.

NEW FENCE ORDERED FOR NORTH FULTON

Barrier Will Enable School To Charge Admission to Games.

The North Fulton High school will get a new iron fence around its athletic field, it was announced yesterday as citizens of the northside made plans to beautify other parts of the school grounds. W. F. Dykes, principal of the school, revealed that Jere Wells, superintendent of the Fulton County Board of Education, had ordered materials for 1,100 feet of fence. The fence will surround the field sufficiently to make charges of admission for games on the field practical, the principal announced.

Meanwhile, a committee of the Northside Civic Improvement Association is planning to meet Thursday and discuss plans for the school grounds. One thousand four hundred dollars was donated by interested citizens at the meeting Tuesday night.

Objectives of the association, which was formed a week ago, are to erect a stadium, install flood lights and pay for landscaping. The total expense will be about $7,000, it was estimated. L. M. Roberts is president of the new association and L. S. Gilbert was elected treasurer.

POLICE GET THREE IN STORE LOOTING

Officers Push Efforts To Solve Series of Robberies.

Police last night sought to solve a series of recent burglaries after catching three negroes they reported in the act of looting the A. C. Rawlings store at 709 McDaniel street yesterday.

The arrested men gave their names as Robert Swann, Fred Wilson and Elbert Wilson. Members of the families of Swann and Fred Wilson said they had only recently been released from the chain gang.

Radio Patrolmen J. H. Langley and H. D. Henshaw said they discovered one man in the store, breaking down a rear door and found two others hiding under a counter with a large sack of clothing valued at $191.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

LA SWANSON YOUNG AND BEAUTIFUL AT 33.

"Is she really beautiful, or is it just a screen illusion?" That is what the public wants to know about every film star. While Gloria Swanson has not made a picture for two and one-half years—and has made only five in the last 10 years—she remains the favorite star of many fans, and she has kept her beauty.

Miss Swanson holds a special place in the hearts of the movie-going public, who first saw her 22 years ago and who keep hearing of her long-lashed blue eyes, dynamic personality, and "oooo-la-la" figure . . . and with good reason. They are authentic. Up to now I would say that her pictures have never done her justice.

This film star of two decades is 33, looks barely 29, and has the smooth figure and skin of a girl in her teens. She thinks the main factor in the figure and beauty program of the woman in her thirties is relaxation. "Sometimes," she has said, "never stand when you can sit, and never sit when you can lie down," and I don't think that advice can be improved upon," says Miss Swanson on the subject of relaxing.

Studio reports to the contrary, Miss Swanson is convinced she is lazy and that that may help her to relax. "I have manana in my blood. . . I never like to do today what I can put off until tomorrow," she says frankly. That is hard to believe because she has the reputation of being one of the hardest working film stars. She has learned one valuable thing: to conserve her energy until it is needed. And if you can master the same art, you won't have any wrinkles, either!

Miss Swanson now has massage in lieu of the strenuous exercises she once favored. Once famous as a horsewoman and in demand as an able tennis partner, she relies on massage every other day to perk up the circulation and, of course, to induce relaxation.

The posture principle is the same.

More and more we are coming to realize that relaxation is as important to beauty as exercise or diet. I honestly believe that only the woman who knows how to relax can keep her beauty.

A regal posture makes this star seem taller than the five feet one and one-half inches she actually measures, and here is another explanation of her lovely figure.

When posture is as perfect as hers, it can be classed as exercise. As a child she lived in Puerto Rico and for fun learned to carry her school books on her head after the fashion of the native women who balance heavy baskets on their heads. Even now she can walk for blocks with a book as securely balanced as if it were attached by elastic.

When you can do that, you have a posture that uses the important muscles. The Swanson figure is as streamlined as if she played tennis several times a week: Bust, 35 inches; hips, 35 inches; waist, 27 inches. How would you like to have those measurements?

Miss Swanson's weight hovers around 110 pounds and is no problem. Neither would yours be, if you were as discriminating in your food selection. She has three meals a day, but never overeats and never has to worry about her weight.

WILLIAM GONZALES, FAMED EDITOR, DIES

Death Ends Long Illness of Former U. S. Diplomat and Soldier.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 20.—(P)—Captain William Elliott Gonzales, editor and publisher of The State, Columbia's morning newspaper, and former U. S. diplomat, died at his home here today after an illness of several months. He was 71 years old.

Captain Gonzales, whose military title dated back to his service in the American army in Cuba during the Spanish-American War, had been in serious condition since undergoing an operation several months ago.

Except for that war service and the period he held the posts of minister to Cuba and ambassador to Peru in the Wilson administration, his entire life was devoted to the newspaper, which was founded by his two older brothers. Captain Gonzales was the last survivor of three distinguished sons of a Cuban patriot who was exiled to this country because of his opposition to Spanish rule. Narciso Gener Gonzales, editor of The State, was shot to death on a Columbia street in 1903, and the oldest brother, Ambrose, noted as an author in addition to other achievements, died 11 years ago.

Captain Gonzales was born in Charleston April 24, 1866. His father was General Ambrosio Gonzales, who, with a price on his head, came to South Carolina, and married Harriett Rutledge Elliott, a member of one of the state's oldest families.

Bobbie Knows Just What He Wants ---And Gets It in a Great, Big Way

Determined Three-Year-Old Nonchalantly Makes His Way Through Seething Downtown Traffic to Drug Store Stool and a Chocolate Soda.

By MAXINE LAND.

Three and one-half-year-old Robert Caldwell found the world to be a bigger and stranger place than he had ever imagined yesterday morning, but like Columbus, he took a chance.

Braving the seething traffic of Forsyth street he climbed out of a car, ran out into the street and made his way swiftly toward his objective—the corner drugstore and a big chocolate soda.

In the meantime, C. G. Kufrey, of 48 Sixth street, N. E., was walking along Forsyth street and saw the small boy weaving in and out of the dangerous traffic, saw him almost hit by a car, and, rushing to his side, grabbed one chubby little hand and led him across the street.

Once on the other side the little fellow looked up at the stranger with large grateful brown eyes as much as to say, "Thanks, old top," and at the same time, drew his little fist out of the stranger's kindly grasp.

Determinedly, he strode straight into the drugstore on the corner of Forsyth and Forsyth streets in the Hazz Howell building. Once inside he got the counter boy to lift him upon a stool and fix him a large chocolate soda which he was in the midst of drinking when Officers C. F. Preston and W. C. Patrick, of radio car 11, who had been called by the pharmacist, R. C. Farris, appeared on the scene. Robert paid little attention to them. He had what he wanted, and he couldn't see beyond that—at least not for the moment.

He had almost finished the chocolate soda when two boys, Olin James and Floyd Saville, 21, of Anderson, S. C., came into the drugstore, walked over to the small boy who immediately recognized them and leaned over to be taken into the arms of one of them.

"We were all in the car across the street with his father, K. G. Caldwell, from Anderson, S. C. We had gone to see about getting some billiard tables and when we came back to the car Robert was gone. There are two other boys along with us, and we've all been searching for him."

Out in the street again Robert was turned over to his father who decided that a boy who has chocolate sodas on the brain requires either watching or a big chocolate soda.

70 Per Cent of Counties Have Benefited.

With 265 public works administration projects allotted in Georgia during the past four years, 70 per cent of the counties have participated in the general PWA program, J. Houston Johnston, acting state director of PWA, announced yesterday.

Total cost of the projects in 112 counties was $18,721,114, according to the report. Federal loans amounted to $3,031,464, while grants totaled $7,613,356.

Most of the money was spent for schools and other educational buildings, while other projects provided for sewers, waterworks and other public improvements.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: When I became engaged to my husband I knew he had had a violent love affair with another girl though he never mentioned her name to me. He simply stated that I was the only girl he ever loved, and he wanted me forever. I think the fact that he would not discuss this love affair with me made me sore. Now our baby has come and would you believe it, he asked me to name our baby for his old flame. Of course I refused point blank but his asking me to do this has spoiled the happiness of our first child's coming. Please tell me how to get my mind at peace again. YOUNG MOTHER.

Answer: Perhaps your jealousy of the old girl and your resentment against your husband for refusing to discuss her with you are natural reactions but, my dear woman, a good many of our natural reactions have to be controlled or they throw us squarely on the track of trouble and when a train comes along we get hurt.

There are some shut-mouthed people (usually men) who can't bring themselves to discuss any subject that has made them suffer. They protect their wounds by letting no one guess they are wounded. Instead of talking the matter out to get rid of it, they bury it deep and keep silent about it. Evidently your husband is one of these people and you will have to respect his natural reluctance to talk about his old girl.

If you could have brought yourself to humor your husband in this matter it would have endeared you to him but you couldn't and that water is over the mill. Then forget it. You have him, you have his baby and if you allow the spectre of an old love to spoil your joy and delight in your great experience you deserve to be miserable. The best way to make your husband forget the old girl is to make yourself all in all to him. Otherwise he will always be saying to himself: "How different it would have been if only I had married the other one."

Most of us have deep and undying sentiment for our early loves. There never was a woman who lost her affection for her old beau. Till the day of her death she has a quick interest and curiosity in all that concerns them. If she sees anybody from the same town in which one of her former flames lives, the first question she asks is about his marriage, whether or not happy, then about his children, his success, his position in his community. And always there is in her eye a cat-that-swallowed-the-canary expression which says very eloquently: "Of course he never loved anybody as he loved me." Then surely a wife should be able to sympathize with the sentiment that her husband harbors for his old girl.

One of the scurvies tricks Mother Nature played on her female children is this: A woman's sense of humor, however well-developed, deserts her when she is dealing with the man she loves. She may be able to laugh off everything that comes up

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN.

MORE TROUBLE. We hear a lot of talk about how much trouble it is to add those extra touches to a meal . . . to try out a little fancier recipe or a new way of combining old standbys. And it is more trouble, no doubt about that. We agree that the simplest way is the best way when a lady is head over heels with a house full of little children.

But most of us aren't so overworked as to excuse us from those extra flourishes that make the difference between creating a plain and unexciting home and making it a work of art. And so, for those women, we advise taking an interest in the rare seasonings, trying out the novelty table cloths and setting the table in new and fresh ways. Because that will be the difference between working at your job and playing at it. If you make it creative, you'll find it fun. If you just "get by" it will be work. We know because we're both kinds of a housekeeper!

An Autumnal Recipe. Here's an autumnal table setting recipe to start out with: A brown linen table cloth, made of dress linen in rich chocolate shade and damasked in white. Plates of white with a green leaf design around their borders, silver polished to gleam, clear crystal stemware. A centerpiece that starts with a white porcelain or silver bowl and tops itself with a heap of lemons, green grapes, laurel leaves, lemons, green apples and blue plums.

Or consider this one if you want something daintier: A powder pink table cloth in either damask or dress linen. Plates with delicate designs, ornate silver Amethyst glass for stemware and centerpiece. Asters in white, pinks and purples.

ordinarily, but she can't force a smile in the funniest situation if it involves her husband and her. Yet she can never be a good wife or a happy one until she learns to laugh when she has the impulse to cry.

CONQUEST

By GERTRUDE GELBIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Marie Walewska, wife of Count Walewski, elderly Polish diplomat, is singled out for attention by Napoleon when he attends a ball held in his honor by Polish noblemen in Warsaw. The diplomats hope to interest him in demanding from Russia the freedom of Poland. Their efforts are a complete failure. Realizing his interest in Marie, he appeals to her husband to send her to Napoleon to plead for Marie. Marie does so and discovers he has no interest in the Polish cause but is determined in his conquest for her. She pleads desperately for her country, but when Napoleon seizes her in his arms and kisses her, she finds herself helpless to resist him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"With you? Always," he answered soberly.

"Now? This minute?" she teased.

"I see only your lovely face," he answered. "I hear only the sound of your voice."

"And do you hear what I say, too?" she smiled.

"For instance—"

"I love you," she whispered.

"Clearly," he replied.

"You will stop loving me one day," she sighed.

"You spoke?" he queried. She nodded. "I did not hear you."

She laughed happily. "You are eating too fast," she cautioned tenderly.

"My mother said the same thing," he answered.

"What did your mother call you?"

"Napoleone," he replied. "She still calls me Napoleone."

"Napoleone," Marie repeated the name softly under her breath. "Napoleone," she looked deep into his eyes. "Are we really sitting across from each other at this table in this room? Perhaps I am born of a snowdrift—and you will pass on to the night—and I shall be nothing."

He placed his cheek next to hers. "No. You are not snow, my dear," he murmured. "And I have never been more real. For I am a man in love—profoundly in love. Marie."

"Yes, Napoleone?"

"I am very happy. Are you?"

"With a little encouragement I could grow quite fond of you," she parried.

A sudden knock at the door broke them apart. Rostam, his servant, entered to announce that the Duc de Talleryrand, Napoleon's foreign minister, had arrived and was awaiting word with his Majesty.

"Hurry back or I'll harry you with notes," she warned.

He embraced her swiftly and left.

As he entered the reception room, the men gathered there rose to greet him. "Good morning, gentlemen," he greeted; he turned to Talleryrand. "Have you had a pleasant journey?" he inquired.

Talleryrand bowed and smiled, writhing inwardly in remembrance of the miles of soft mud and slush he had bumped through in order to reach Castle Finckenstein. Why had the Emperor chosen this hide-out in Prussia for his headquarters? What had he hidden here of such import? For certainly, no one would winter in Finckenstein except for the purpose of concealing something—but what? No matter; he'd discover it before he left the castle. His reply to Napoleon gave no evidence of the trend his thoughts were taking.

"I was aware of nothing but the pleasure of serving your majesty," he smiled. "Charming place—Finckenstein."

"You think so?" Napoleon queried provocatively. "I don't like it." And, in an instant, he became completely the Emperor, putting Talleryrand, the Persian ambassador, and the sundry other dignitaries, in their place.

A servant broke in upon the conference with a note. Napoleon interrupted a speech to read it. Talleryrand watched him from under lowered lids, avid with curiosity. Napoleon flashed him a quick glance of malicious satisfaction. The note was from Marie—and he knew what Talleryrand would give to discover the writer and contents. He rose from his chair, cutting short the conference. "I leave now on a matter of utmost urgency," he said suavely. "My foreign minister, Prince Talleryrand, will discuss our various matters with you." Back in his room he found Marie at the table writing him another note. They laughed uproariously at his sudden return. He took her in his arms and kissed her.

A knock at the door interrupted them. Napoleon turned impatiently. "Come in," he roared.

Constant, his servant, entered. "The Duc de Talleryrand," said he, "offers his most humble compliments to Madame and begs his Majesty's permission to present certain documents for signature."

Napoleon and Marie stared at each other in surprise. Drat Talleryrand! That fellow could ferret out secrets with amazing speed. Well—that's what made him such a perfect foreign minister. Napoleon shrugged his shoulders. "All right. Let him come in."

Constant disappeared and Talleryrand entered the door almost at the same moment. He stood at attention, surveying the room with an expression of such delighted triumph that it verged on the malignant. His guess had been correct. Marie was the reason for Napoleon's winter stay in Finckenstein. He bowed obsequiously.

"Your majesty. Madame! I am happy to renew an old acquaintance—in this delightful—" he paused—"retreat."

"I find Madame's advice very helpful," said Napoleon crisply. "With Madame's permission, I shall proceed with business. Where are the documents?"

Talleryrand opened his portfolio. "The document creating the Grand Duchy of Warsaw," he announced observing Marie slyly as he spread it on the table. She let out a gasp of incredulous pleasure. He bowed to her. "I am very happy, Madame, to be the first to bring you the news of Poland's liberation."

Napoleon frowned in chagrin. He himself had meant to tell her the news. Marie stepped quickly into the breach. "Not the first, Your Excellency," she answered quietly. "Nevertheless I am grateful."

Napoleon flashed her a look of gratitude and admiration. He turned to Talleryrand and in business-like fashion, he handed him a document. Before Talleryrand realized it, he found himself dismissed. "And Austria?" he questioned as he made for the door. Napoleon waved him outside.

As the door closed behind him, Napoleon placed a quick kiss on Marie's cheek. "Excellent, Marie! he complimented. He took her hands into his, his eyes searching hers.

"Why didn't you tell me what you were doing for my country?" she asked, her face radiant with happiness.

"I always meant to," he answered. "But I always ended by saying I love you." She laughed aloud. "That villain Talleryrand," he continued, "has spooled a very charming surprise." He crossed to the window and looked up at the eaves of the roof. "Look, Marie, the swallows are back." He opened the window and took a deep breath. "Hal There's spring in this air! We must take a gallop into the country. Come here my dear and fill your lungs. It's like wine in the blood." He breathed deeply. "Time to be on the march," he cried.

Her face blanched. She crossed to him and put her arm through his. The wind blew her hair as she stood close to him sensuously responsive to the moist fresh breeze. Her smile grew wistful and her eyes filled with vague regret.

"The winter was all too short," she said sadly.

He looked down at her, suddenly aware of her change of mood, suddenly moved by the tender sadness in her eyes.

"The spring will be glorious, my dear," he promised. "I will crush Austria in a few weeks—then I'll come back to you."

"But the spring will be over," she whispered.

He clasped her close. "There will be the long summer—and the fall—and snow again—and many springs to follow."

"God grant it!" she prayed. Her eyes filled with tears, and he kissed them away tenderly as they fell on her cheeks.

PICTURES OVER THE OCEAN.

When King George VI was crowned, many newspapers on our continent printed photographs of the event on the very same day. How could such a thing be?

The photographs were not carried by plane. It is possible for airplanes to cross the Atlantic very quickly these days, but no pilot could do it in time to deliver a picture within an hour or so after an event happened.

The "pictures across the ocean" were made possible by telegraph and radio systems of sending pictures.

Tests of inventions to send drawings by telegraph were made as far back as 90 years. The first tests were not successful, but Abbe Caselli sent drawings by telegraph in 1862.

sands of miles through wires, and at the end of the journey have been almost as good as the original.

Photographs also have been sent without wires—in other words by means of light. It is amazing how clear cut some of those sent during the past few years have been. Artists in a newspaper office may "touch up" pictures which come in this way, but even without their work, a photograph can give a good idea of what has happened at a long distance.

If we look at a photograph printed in a newspaper from an engraving we see many "dots." Some of the dots are heavy, others light. The hundreds of dots in an engraving give us the picture. They show the shading, some being just a little lighter or just a little darker than those near by.

The light parts and the dark parts of pictures are picked up and sent to receiving stations. The photo-electric cell has been of great help in sending pictures great distances. This device grew out of a discovery made by a German scientist, Heinrich Hertz, many years ago.

OF FARMERS URGED

Warner Livestock Group Farmed of Industrial, Business Collapse.

DeLos L. James, manager of the agricultural department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was the principal speaker at a luncheon given yesterday by the Live Stock Committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. E. S. Pappy, vice chairman of the committee, presided.

The meeting took the form of a round table discussion of the problems of the farmer and his desires in regard to new farm legislation to be passed at the forthcoming special session of congress. Speakers emphasized the close interrelation of agriculture and business and pointed out that some remedy for the economic disadvantages of the farmer must be found if the entire industrial and business set-up of the nation is not to collapse.

Among those present were a number of farmers in Atlanta for the hearing before a sub-committee of the senate committee on agriculture. Farmers, businessmen and other Georgia leaders expressed divergent views on the pressing problems of the cotton farmer, but were agreed that, unless some form of effective crop control is devised, the south will be forced to turn largely to other crops.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Felix M. Warburg, Jewish leader, philanthropist and banker, died at his Fifth avenue home today of heart disease. He was 66.

Warburg, senior partner of the international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., was stricken Sunday night, but his condition was not regarded as critical until today.

His widow, the former Frieda Schiff, and their five children were with him at the end.

Warburg, German-born son of a famous financial family, had devoted most of his time recently to the task of expatriating German Jews to the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

Recently he attended sessions of the Jewish Agency for Palestine in Zurich, Switzerland, and led a revolt by American-born Zionists against a British proposal to partition Palestine into sovereign Jewish and Arabian states.

Warburg had also been instrumental to compromise providing for a round-table conference of Arab and Arabs was effected.

A year ago Warburg was named chairman of the American division of the executive committee of the Council for German Jewry, a world-wide organization for co-ordinating efforts to expatriate 100,000 German Jews within four years.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE

No. 4

"Jad-bai-je will go with us," Tarzan said as he swung the cage door wide. "Won't he bite us?" Dick quavered. "Not unless I tell him to," the ape-man laughed. But the boys stopped back in fear at the great golden beast strode majestically from his cage.

The yellow, terrifying eyes surveyed them, and Tarzan spoke in a language the boys did not understand as Jad-bai-je advanced, sniffing them inquiringly. "I am telling him you are my friends and that he must not harm you," Tarzan of the Apes explained.

"I hope he gets it straight," Dick said seriously. "—that is, I wouldn't like to have any misunderstanding about it." Tarzan smiled and signalled the boys to follow him. "Don't we need supplies for our expedition?" Doc asked. Tarzan shook his head.

"The jungle gives food and shelter to those who know how to claim it." The boys grinned delightedly. It was good to be under the protection of the mighty ape-man, to learn from him the secrets of the wilderness, which beckoned them alluringly to high adventure.
